Clown princess

"WINKY" THE Clown showed off her face-painting prowess with a swirl on the cheek of 10-year old Denise Tyler of Monterey at All Saints' Episcopal School's 75th Anniversary Ice Cream Festival last Saturday. The event also featured puppet shows, games, rides in antique cars, a cake-baking contest, fashion show, and of course plenty of ice cream. Winky is actually 25-year resident Sheryl Padgham, who doesn't mind painting her own face once in a while. More photos of the event on pages 10-11. (Holly McFarland photo.)

County's report on fire blasted by CDF chief

By DAVID LELAND

EVEN THOUGH it's been a month since a fire tore through part of Pebble Beach, hard feelings were still smoldering this week as county officals and firefighting agencies went nose-to-nose before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Tuesday's action was scheduled to be a routine report to the board by Art McDole, county communications director, on what is now called the "Morse Fire."

But after McDole read his eight-page report to the board, sparks flew as Roy Perkins, California Department of Forestry's chief ranger for Monterey and San Benito County, lambasted McDole's report as inaccurate and incomplete.

Principally, Perkins took issue with McDole's criticism of the CDF's command station, also known as Incident Command System.

"It does not appear that the Incident Command System was ever fully established, nor did it function in the prescribed manner," said McDole in his report. "There was no single command post established at any time."

Perkins said he not only set up a command headquarters, but his agency would have been in complete charge if only the county had listened.

"I will point out to you that McDole does not understand the command system," he told the board.

The ICF was established in Southern California, Perkins said, by the CDF, U.S. Department of Forestry and the Los Angeles County Fire Department and establishes a hierarchy.

In case of a wildland fire, as in the case of the May 31 fire in Pebble Beach, the CDF is in complete charge, he said.

"If there was a problem with ICF, it's in the county government establishing a separate system," Perkins said. "That will not work."

Perkins accused the county of trying to set up its own radio communication system and not having an accurate appraisal of what damage was really taking place in Pebble Beach.

Perkins added that the county was partly to blame for the varying number of damage reports coming out of Pebble Beach during the night of the fire, those estimates ranged from 18 to as high as 60 houses being destroyed.

"The confusion was compounded by the county handing out erroneous information," said Perkins, adding that official numbers show 31 houses being destroyed.

•

PERKINS ALSO attempted to make clear why fire engines from Fort Ord were not ordered to assist firefighters in Pebble Beach.

"I have taken a lot of flak over Fort Ord," said Perkins.

Perkins said in early May area fire chiefs began to work out a new, complicated mutual aid plan for emergency agencies. Officials again met May 20 to further iron out the plan.

But once the fire broke out, that plan fell apart and the only agency correctly called in to fight the young blaze was the Carmel Valley Fire Department.

In this instance Perkins pointed the finger at the system in general.

"Fort Ord should have been called in, but they were never dispatched," he said. "I'm told it's not the first time there has been a mutual aid fiasco."

Perkins also said that McDole's report leaves out the heroics performed by Paradise lost?

Leave Carmel alone

Dear Editor:

Your article, Supporters of theater ask for advisory vote (Carmel Pine Cone June 18) left the reader with the impression that Carmel-by-the-Sea needs and wants a project of this mass and size built in the middle of our community. Nothing could be further from the truth.

First, reporting that 75 Carmelites were surveyed in a scientific manner says those 75 are atypical of Carmel. Because a 72 percent "in favor" response was received, it suggests the residents are for the project, but the areas surveyed included not only Carmel, but Monterey, Pacific Grove, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach and other county areas. Seventy-five of the 420 people surveyed live in Carmel-by-the-Sea and were chosen from a selected list. The other 355 live outside our city limits.

Secondly, no mention was made of an identical project already under study in Monterey, where the impacts can better be mitigated. Where land has already been acquired, parking has already been built, where streets can handle the traffic and where water is available.

Mayor Eastwood is correct to suggest if a vote is necessary only Carmel residents be polled. We are the few who must endure what a project of this size will mean to our small community. Carmel voters have, in a past election, turned this idean down, the planning commission has said it is not consistent with the General Plan and Carmel has already spent $10,000 toward the feasibility study. The supporters now want us to pay for an advisory note. After such a poor reception, how much more advice do they need?

Economics? The economics say we cannot support a center of this size. Undoubtedly the center would not only cater to Monterey County, but would have to look to San Jose and beyond for support. In order to assure a full house at each performance, the draw would be aimed at conventions, tours and special groups.

Finally, with all due respect for Mrs. Stanton and her late husband, if this project is so vital to her, I suggest she attempt to build it in her own community, Carmel Valley, but leave Carmel alone.

Music lovers

Dear Editor:

Speaking for the Cabrillo Slavoni Chorus, I would like to thank the Pine Cone for its great advance coverage of our recent concert, which undoubtedly helped to fill the Mission to overflowing by performance time. Thanks also to the audience for its support, enthusiasm, and good nature when we ran out of seats and programs.

Anyone in the audience who failed to get a program may phone me at home. I will be returning from our East Coast tour, and I shall endeavor to provide one.

It's the berries

Dear Editor:

For a village whose mayor's very name is entwined with the in-and-exhalations of "The Hog"; for a hamlet that has as many bars as a Bach fugue; and which houses its only south of Ocean Avenue public restroom amid the inciting fumes of Toots Lagoon's new public/boozetique, what could be more apropos than a resident saint named Junipero? For what would one's gin be sans those juniper berries! I can see him now, in stained glass, glowing in the murk of local pubs, giving an odor of sanctity to every martini in town.

Here's looking at you—under raised eyebrows,

Budget dilemma

Dear Editor:

I'm constantly reading about Superintendent of Education Bill Honig and his unfair criticisms of Gov. Deukmejian.

However, I don't seem to find the facts about education funding and Honig's demands.

Your readers should know that the share of the state general fund budget devoted to education has risen from 51.8 percent four years ago to 55 percent today, the highest level in nearly 20 years.

During the last four years, the general fund has increased $9.6 billion; $6 billion of that has gone to support education.

That means that 63 cents of every new dollar state government has received has been earmarked for schools during the Duekmejian Administration.

While the state budget will grow less than 2 percent in the coming year, the governer has proposed a 4.5 percent increase for all levels of education. Over 50 percent of all new revenues state government will receive this year will be directed to our schools.

Bill Honig cries for more money but refuses to say where the state will get additional funds.

Which health, welfare, transportation or public safety programs does he want to cut? Which taxes does he want raised? Sales tax? Personal income tax? Taxes on farmers and businesses?

I believe the problem with schools and education is not money but the people who decide how and where it should be used.

Unique privileges

Dear Editor:

I think most readers of newspapers assume they are getting hard news. It is rather disappointing to be confronted with a dramatic example that in so many cases they are reading wishful thinking.

For weeks before the parliamentary election in South Africa the newspapers never mentioned the word parliament without adding the qualifying phrase "white only." They led us to believe Peter Botha's party was under great pressure, even from the "right," and that the apartheid government was likely to be upset.

Lo, and behold, when the returns were in the election showed "broad approval of Botha's policies among white voters, who turned out in record numbers."

Newspaper pontificators can clasp the First Amendment provisions as closely to their bosoms as they wish, and they can speak reverently of the "people's right to know," but if they elevate their own political philosophies above a strict adherence to the "free speech" responsibilities, it is no longer freedom, but license.

I extend this challenge, and warning, to newspaper publishers everywhere: "Guard well the almost unique privileges the people of our great country have extended to you. Abuse them at your peril."

The ol' runaround

Dear Editor:

We've been watching the Iran-Contra hearings and we find that at times we adopt the same sort of fascinating language.

The other day I came home, entered the kitchen and set down a bag of groceries.

My mate walked in from the living room and asked, "Did you remember to get the bread?"

"I was not aware that was on the agenda."

"How about the bird seed?" "I remembered that when I teed off, but after I had lost my third golf ball, my memory seemed to suffer; however, I did remember the bourbon and the pork chops."

She leaned forward and cupped her chin in her left hand.

"Are you aware, sir, that your chronology was to purchase nine items and that you purchased only two. How can I run this organization without competent cooperation?"

"I'm sorry. I seem to be missing your point, but I sense your consternation. I accept full responsibility for my actions. I have been under great stress recently and my mind has been occupied with another problem."

She shook her head and took a sip of spring water. "Just what does that mean?"

"I've been secretly working with the government. We're trying to figure out what to do with that bargeload of garbage that keeps floating around on the ocean."

EDITOR'S DESK

By Mac Mc Donald

Who's on first?

CAN SOMEONE please explain to me how government works?

We all know government can work in strange and unexplainable ways, but some things defy logic and common sense.

A case in point is a recent decision by the Carmel City Council to take grant funds from one non-profit agency to give to another (see related story this issue). This was done even though the agency getting the funds (Suicide Prevention Center) missed the deadline for submitting grant applications and the agency getting the rug pulled out from underneath it was promised it would get its full grant.

That would be bad enough in itself, especially since representatives of Planned Parenthood, which had almost one-third of its grant monies lopped off, were told they didn't have to show up for the council meeting because the money was in hand, thus they were unable to defend themselves.

But it doesn't end there (does it ever?) According to a city staff recommendation, $2,189 was available from an unused fund. Two thousand of that could have gone to the Suicide Prevention Center and Planned Parenthood could have kept its grant intact. Instead not only was $1,500 taken away from Planned Parenthood and given to the suicide center, but the council found itself at the end of the meeting with the $2,189 still unused. They asked around at the meeting and found that Sunset Center Director Richard Tyler — who apparently was caught off-guard — could use some new tables and carpeting (couldn't we all?)

So instead of Planned Parenthood serving the needs of students at Carmel High School (among other services), Sunset Center gets some new interior decorating.

Apparently the primary consideration for taking this route was because the council didn't want to exceed its $80,000-plus budget for grants. If so, why give Suicide Prevention Center anything? After all, they didn't meet the deadline (although they probably had a good excuse).

The city staff found a way to fund both Suicide Prevention Center and Planned Parenthood without dipping into the apparently "untouchable" grant funds or taking funds away from one well-deserving non-profit agency to give to another.

The Suicide Prevention Center is a deserving organization, but so is Planned Parenthood, why punish them? Both organizations are beneficial and necessary for Carmel residents. Is this just a roundabout way to yank funds from an organization that some council members may not agree with in philosophy? If so, why not just say so up front and vote accordingly?

Can someone explain to me how government works?

Howard Nieman tabbed new commissioner

By DAVID LELAND

WHILE THERE was some opposition to Mayor Clint Eastwood's selection of a new planning commissioner, the Carmel City Council approved investor Howard Nieman Jr. to the post last week.

Filling an unexpected vacancy left by planning commissioner Bruce Roberts' resignation, Nieman, 29, will serve the three years left on the term.

While Nieman was nominated by Eastwood, Councilmember Bob Evans lobbied hard against that choice at the council's June 26 meeting at city hall.

"I think his intellectual achievements are amazing," said Evans, after the nomination by Eastwood. "But his philosophy is not the philosophy of the general plan committee and I do not think it is the philosophy of this administration."

Evans' referred to a 29-page letter written by Nieman criticizing the general plan revisions currently under review by the Carmel Planning Commission.

"This (appointment) is either the greatest act of trust since the Trojan War or the most profound recantation since Galileo," Evans said.

But other councilmembers appeared to welcome having both sides of the coin represented.

The council voted 3-1 to approve Nieman, with Evans dissenting and Councilman James Wright absent.

"We have to have some diversion," said Councilman Bob Fischer, after the vote. "I welcome your support."

Nieman received a round of applause after his council approval.

"I only hope that Mr. Evans will realize it is a great act of trust," Nieman said. "I hope we can work together in the next few months."

But that did not seem to quell any doubts harbored by Evans.

HOWARD NIEMAN, Jr., Carmel's newest planning commissioner, stands on San Carlos Street which is well-known for its parking and traffic problems. Nieman is interested in solving issues such as parking, second stories and intensified use of the commercial district. Nieman was appointed June 26 by Mayor Clint Eastwood to fill the seat recently vacated by Commissioner Bruce Roberts. He will complete the three years left on Roberts' term. (Holly McFarland photo.)

"That's what I said to Mr. Wright," said Evans, much to the amusement of the standing room-only crowd.

Evans was referring of his appointment last fall to the council seat left vacant by the death of Helen Arnold. Wright had fought against Evans filling that post, and the two are often adversaries on many crucial issues.

Nieman said after the meeting that he favors stopping any more growth in Carmel until the commission has had more time to study the trends.

"I think the commission should not allow more expansion of tourism growth development in this town," said the 17-year Carmel resident. He added that if that aim is not accomplished the situation will only get worse.

"I hope we can (stop tourism growth)," he said. "Or you won't be able to cross the street anymore."

One of Carmel's most visible activists, Nieman, an investor, said he will be forced to curtail some of his actions because of his recent appointment.

Namely, his involvement in a new newspaper called The Village Watch. The first edition of that newspaper will hit the streets in mid July, Nieman said.

"There are some things that I cannot participate in, the newspaper may be one of them," he said. "Unfortunately many of the issues in the newspaper will talk about land issues, which will eventually find their way to the planning commission."

(For more on Howard Nieman see page 12.)

Council takes from one non-profit to give to another

By DAVID LELAND

IN ADOPTING the second half of the city's $6,937,452 biennial budget last week, the Carmel City Council practiced some grant juggling that left at least one non-profit agency unhappy.

At hand was a last-minute appeal from the Monterey County Suicide Prevention Center, which had requested a $2,000 grant.

The grant application had previously been turned down by the cultural commission because the Suicide Prevention Center had not met the city's deadline.

But at its meeting earlier in June, the council had pledged some funding toward the Suicide Prevention Center. At that time it was unclear where the money would come from or how much it would be.

In the council packet at last week's meeting was a report from the city staff suggesting that those funds could be found in an account for a Festival of Firsts play which had not been performed.

"There remains in that account $2,189 which could be utilized for the Suicide Prevention Center," the report states.

But the council instead opted (4-1, with Councilman Jim Wright absent), to pull grant money away from another agency, rather than dip into that account.

"We should remove $1,500 from Planned Parenthood and apply it to suicide prevention," Fischer said.

The cultural commission had earlier approved a $4,375 grant for Planned Parenthood.

Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo also said that Planned Parenthood was not serving enough residents to merit such a large grant.

"Planned Parenthood last year served 10 percent of the community," she told the council. "And this year it only served 5 percent."

But on further examination those figures are misleading, according to Sue Buckhholz, executive director of Planned Parenthood.

In 1986, Planned Parenthood was asked on its grant form the percentage of Carmel residents served by that agency, which was 10 percent, or about 400 residents, she said.

This year's grant form asks how many benefited from the service and the answer was 5 percent, or about 678 residents.

"They're two different questions," she said. "So there are two different answers."

Nevertheless, the council unanimously voted to divert $1,500 of the grant money scheduled for Planned Parenthood into the coffers of the Suicide Prevention Center.

And while Suicide Prevention was happy to receive its requested grant money, the council's action caught Jim Stoll, prevention center executive director, between a proverbial rock and a hard place.

"I find it kind of a tacky situation," he said, referring to being pitted against a sister non-profit agency. "We're grateful for the money of course...we need it, but we would never support such a move. We don't like to play that way."

In a telephone interview, Laiolo told The Pine Cone that she had been intent on keeping the grant funding within the money allotted by the city in its 1987-88 budget.

"The issue was: should the city give away more than the $81,165?" she said, referring to the amount in the budget. "We have a long list of others that went unfunded."

That action met with both disappointment and trepidation from the cultural commission and Planned Parenthood.

After the vote, Jean White, cultural commission chairwoman, expressed her surprise regarding the council's action because some of the funds from Carmel to Planned Parenthood were to go toward AIDS education at Carmel High School.

The week following the meeting, Planned Parenthood representatives were still dazed by the decision, which caught them off guard.

"That $1,500 is money that we budgeted," Buckhholz said. "We'll have to find that money someplace else or those services won't be performed."

"Those services" to the students at Carmel High School include a toll-free telephone line that enables youngsters to talk about confidential and often taboo subjects, plus the Teen Life Co., which is a theater troupe from the high school.

Buckhholz said even with the grant money from Carmel it is hard to keep afloat.

"We had to go outside of Carmel to get that money to provide those services to Carmel," she said. "We spent a lot more on services in Carmel than the $4,000 we get."

Planned Parenthood's grant from Carmel now stands at $2,875.

Buckkholz said it was especially disturbing that they had not attended the meeting because they had been guaranteed the money and were told not to bother to come to Carmel.

"The fact that we weren't there on hand and had made an effort to be is really upsetting," she said.

Last year, when she was with the Rape Crisis Center, Buckhholz said she had submitted a grant proposal to Carmel late and had been denied, which she understood.

It seemed strange to her that the Suicide Prevention Center could put in a late application and, not only get the money, but get it from another non-profit organization.

But still, she said she did not have any hard feelings about the money going to a fellow helping agency.

"We don't begrudge Suicide Prevention the money," she said. "The problem we have with it is the process."

The $2,000 earmarked by the city staff for the Suicide Prevention Center from funds from an unperformed play went, instead, to new carpeting and tables in parts of Sunset Center.

Public meeting scheduled for Big Sur Multi-Agency facility

MONTEREY COUNTY Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman will head a public meeting to discuss the site plan and architectural theme of the proposed Big Sur Multi-Agency Facility on July 20, at the Big Sur Grange Hall.

The meeting, to be held under the auspices of the Big Sur Coast Advisory Committee to the County Planning Commission, will begin at 7 p.m.

The Big Sur Multi-Agency Facility is to be located one-quarter mile south of Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, where Caltrans and U.S. Forest Service offices are currently located. The new complex will house the USDA Forest Service, California Department of Transportation, and the California Parks and Recreation Department. Other uses for the facility include visitor information, public contact, communications, administrative offices, wilderness trailhead use, parking, employee housing, workshops and storage for highway maintenance, fire prevention and suppression, and maintenance of equestrian stock.

"The new facility, properly designed, will be a good example of inter-governmental cooperation" said Strasser Kauffman. "It is imperative that the local community be involved in that design to the fullest, so that the final product fits into the sensitive and scenic surroundings of Big Sur."

Registrations taken for Marine World

REGISTRATIONS ARE being taken at Carmel Youth Center for a day at Marine World-Africa USA on Wednesday, July 8.

The trip to the amusement park in Vallejo is designed for youths 11-18 years old. Registration fee is $12, which covers the price of admission to the park and transportation.

For more information call David Rich at 624-3285 or drop by the youth center, Fourth Avenue and Torres Street in Carmel.

County's fire report blasted by CDF head

firefighters that night. He cited several instances, such as 40 firefighters standing their ground and not giving an inch until flames began to engulf them.

After Perkins had his say, it was the supervisors turn to grill him on some unexplained questions.

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman wondered why it took so long for the evacuation process to begin.

"In the Morse Fire, there was no planned evacuation," McDole said in his report. "CDF requested the sheriff's units to report to the Granite Pit for evacuation at 1844 hours (6:44 p.m.) and seven minutes later...the houses on top of Huckleberry Hill were on fire and it was an emergency situation with people fleeing for their lives."

But Perkins said firefighters thought they had contained the blaze up until the time it "spotted" and went out of control.

"The fire just changed on us," he said. "The first couple of hours are not a problem. Just the last seven minutes are a problem."

But Strasser Kauffman did not stop there, she questioned Perkins again why it took so long for the sheriff's deputies to be called to the scene.

Perkins said the sheriff should have sent a representative to the scene without being asked; that is the correct procedure.

"He does not need a request," Perkins said. "That is his responsibility."

Strasser Kauffman, visibly irritated, still was not satisfied with Perkins' answer.

"That's not a satisfactory answer, but I'll go on," she said. "I believe we owe them (Pebble Beach residents) an answer when the evacuation plan will be implemented."

Strasser Kauffman then asked if there might be a different method of determining when evacuation will be carried out in the future.

The answer is probably not.

"It's when the fire changes that you get evacuation," he explained. "It's very difficult to determine."

But one thing is for sure, the Monterey County Sheriff's Department will need to be clued into the operating procedures.

"It was our understanding that if there was a need we would be called," said Sheriff D.B. "Bud" Cook.

THE LINES were clearly drawn in the packed supervisors chambers Tuesday, with McDole and Cook representing the county on one side and about 20 firefighters dressed in uniform from peninsula and state agencies on the other.

Clearly, the supervisors were somewhat suprised by the volatile response to the report requested by the board in early June. According to the board's agenda, only 20 minutes were allotted for the item — it took more than an hour.

After Perkins had spoken his piece, Strasser Kauffman invited McDole to return to the podium for a rebuttal.

McDole said he was somewhat taken aback by the differing agencies airing their dirty laundry in public.

"I'm rather suprised at this attitude at a public forum," he said.

McDole said in a private meeting, CDF and the county had agreed not to bring up the controversial Fort Ord matter in public.

"It was my belief that this was not to be brought out," he said.

It was obvious that the two sides had differing opinions on what actually transpired regarding Fort Ord and why engines did not respond.

"Fort Ord called CDF and asked if they were needed," McDole said. "They were told 'no.' "

McDole was adamant that agencies cannot always be expected to do the correct thing in times of actual emergency.

"I believe that sometimes you cannot bring the mountain to Mohammed," he said. "Mohammed must go to the mountain."

The report, which compiled information from state and county agencies, plus the Pebble Beach Co., was not met to point the finger at any one person or agency, McDole said.

"The report is intended to be positive rather than negative," he said. "There is no attempt to place these problems on any one agency."

The report has resulted in several actions that will be taken if an emergency occurs. These are:

- The sheriff will send deputies to every fire in the unincorporated area to assess the situation.
- CDF will keep the county advised of the situation of all wildfires where structures may be endangered.
- If it appears there is a potential requirement for evacuation, the Emergency Operations Coordinator will be notified. A joint decision will be made regarding notification to residents of the need to evacuate.
- County communciations will acquire portable, multi-channeled radio equipment.
- If evacuations become necessary, they will be performed by the sheriff and coordinated by the Emergency Operations Coordinator.

But these measures fall short of those desired by the board, especially Strasser Kauffman. Many of Strasser Kauffman's constituents reside in Pebble Beach.

At next week's (July 7) board meeting, Strasser Kauffman will present a list of recommendations to the board designed to tighten up fire prevention measures within the county.

Two of these will be supervising the maintenance of the Del Monte Forest and enforcing the established code and evaluating building and landscaping regulations in the unincorporated areas.

Strasser Kauffman said she recently toured Pebble Beach and was amazed to find pine needles still scattered upon many roofs.

Fire officials have blamed the large amount of dry debris as part of the reason the fire spread so quickly as it was fanned by stiff ocean breezes.

The board will also hear another fire report in late July — that one will be put together by area fire chiefs.

"We will develop positive recommendations to improve every response system," said Robert Heald, fire chief of the Carmel Valley Fire Department.

Heald said he has nothing but praise for the way CDF and Perkins handled the fire, especially around the area which suffered the most damage.

"I'm hear to say that no number of firemen or fire engines could have stopped that fire on Los Altos Drive," said Heald, referring to one of the hardest-hit streets in the Huckleberry Hill section of Pebble Beach.

Council to decide on advisory vote on theater

By DAVID LELAND

NEXT WEEK'S Carmel City Council meeting may pave the way toward letting voters decide whether they want a new theater at Sunset Center with an advisory vote this November.

The request, made by the Friends of Sunset Center in mid June, is the last in a series of efforts made by that committee to persuade the city to expand — at no expense to it — the auditorium at Sunset Center.

The council will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, July 7 at the Carmel Women's Club, located on San Carlos Street and Ninth Avenue.

Plans call for the theater to seat between 1,200 and 1,500 people, instead of the current 730.

In order to be placed on the ballot, the council first must approve a measure to that effect. Then, there must also be room on the November ballot after all of the consolidated measures are listed. That will be determined by the county registrar of voters.

The city would bear the expense of election expenses from its coffers.

Even though a survey polling Carmel and peninsula residents showed more than 70 percent of the respondents favoring the theater, many neighbors surrounding Sunset Center have recently expressed opposition referring to the possible traffic impacts in area.

The city recently began taking bids for the construction of a multi-level, underground garage to be built at the north end of Sunset Center.

The Friends of Sunset Theater have pledged to finance the theater, which has a price tag between $10 million and $15 million. It has also stated it would create an endowment to maintain the theater once built.

It should be noted that an advisory election is non-binding in that its results do not become law, but merely are an expression of public sentiment.

The advisory vote matter is also coming in the wake of a planning commission decision calling the proposed Stanton Theater too big for Carmel.

At one of its May meetings, the planning commission found that, because the theater was going to expand, it was no longer in accordance with the city's general plan.

But the commissioners said they were open to reevaluating their decision if the voters decided they were in favor of the project.

•

ALSO AT the July 7 meeting, the council will hear a resolution which will attempt to re-route tour buses.

Currently the tour buses drop off passengers at the Carmel Plaza, turn right on Eighth Avenue, left on San Carlos Street and make their way to Rio Road. From there they go to Highway 1 and back up the hill to Carmel.

The changes are being suggested because there have been complaints from residents regarding the noise the buses make going down San Carlos. Also, the bus drivers have complained about the amount of traffic they must navigate at the mouth of the valley when working their way back to Carmel.

The proposed resolution calls for the buses to exit town via Ocean Avenue and, hopefully, park at Carmel High School while waiting for their fares. The resolution is only for a 60-day trial period.

It is still unclear what the mood of the Carmel Unified School District is on the matter of parking on school grounds even though it is summer vacation.

Also at its meeting the council will hear:

• A progress report on ordinance changes for second-story construction and adopt an urgency ordinance prohibiting second-story construction for up to 10 months and 15 days.

When adopted last month the ordinance was set to last for 45 days.

• Two appeals of planning commission decisions.

On May 27, the planning commission denied Betty and Richard Siegrist a permit to add a solarium unit on to the manager's apartment at their hotel at San Antonio and 13th avenues.

The Siegrists claim the unit would be cost-effective.

Also the counci will hear an appeal from Shirley Ballou representing Ballou's Walking Tours.

Ballou was denied a use permit by the planning commission and claims her application is consistent with the general plan and that she is suffering economic injury.

• A request from Councilmember Elinor Laiolo to reduce the social and cultural grant appropriations for the 1988-90 budget.

Laiolo said the grants are becoming increasingly expensive with each year and are servicing many agencies outside of Carmel.

By cutting down who the city funds, the budget will also be decreased, she said.

Cherry Hall neighbors will host barbecue on July 6

THE NEIGHBORS of Cherry Hall Association will sponsor a barbecue to help promote a better sense of community in the area.

The barbecue will be held starting at 4:30 p.m. Monday, July 6 in a closed-off portion of Santa Rita Street between Fourth and Fifth Avenue. All members and neighbors are invited to attend.

The association requests each person bring a barbecue item and a dish to share.

Stewart property plans opposed by neighbors

By DAVID LELAND

RESIDENTS IN the Carmel Point area are resigned to the fact that some building will take place on the vacant lot called the "Stewart property," but the proposed plans for eight houses, they say, seems out of line with the neighborhood character.

The applicant, Scenic Associates of Danville, under a 1909 subdivision map, is already cleared to build the homes on the 39,000-square-foot site bordered by Scenic Road and Ocean View and Isabella avenues.

But under the Carmel Area Land Use Plan, which calls for a protected viewshed, those plans will still fall under the close scrutiny of county planners.

In order to insure that the county gets an accurate appraisal of the situation, a citizens advisory committee will meet at 4 p.m. Monday, July 6 at River School.

All residents are urged to attend that meeting, according to Michael Albov, an attorney representing the neighborhood's concerned residents.

"If this house sets a precedent, there will be massive houses all over this property," Albov said.

The plans submitted to the county call for a height of 22 feet, with a total square footage of 2,279 square feet. The maximum height allowed on that property by law is 24 feet, according to county regulations.

For Charles Chrietzberg, whose living room window looks out over the bay toward Point Lobos, a 22-foot high home would permanently alter his view.

Chrietzberg said he would support less density, with an 18-foot height limit and an area of 18,000 square feet.

Chrietzberg's idea seems to fall in line with that of the neighborhood, according to Katherine Woodward, who has been fighting development on that land since 1979.

"Basically I haven't found anybody in the neighborhood who doesn't support redesigning the height of the units," she said.

Besides a lowering of height limitations, residents are proposing that the land come under one plan, instead of being phased in gradually. That way there will be no surprises in the future.

Agreeing with the advisory committee is 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who calls the area "very close to my heart."

"What we need is a little master [illegible] for just that property," she said. "If the eight owners of the property will bring us a master plan, we will avoid helter-skelter building."

Mike King, who has submitted the first set of plans to the county, was unavailable for comment.

•

STRASSER KAUFFMAN said she believes that, above all, the natural viewshed should be preserved in Carmel — an idea that she fears may not be foremost in developers' minds.

"I believe the atmosphere of the surrounding area needs to be taken into account," she said.

"It's (proposed Stewart development) a drastic change in the community,"

She added that, many times, people submitting plans to the county do not take all factors into account, which is creating a "real trend" in Carmel.

"There's a tendency to take a very small lot and put the maximum building on it," she said. "Bigger is not better in this case."

Strasser Kauffman said the Stewart property needs something "less ambitious." She added that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors will not approve designs not in accord with the neighborhoods in which they will be built.

That was recently demonstrated in the board's decision reversing a planning commission's building permit issuance because it believed the proposed structure did not fit with the neighborhood. That property was about four blocks from the Stewart property.

But there is more to the proposed building than density and height, Chrietzberg said. There is also traffic, parking and public access to the Carmel River Beach which need to be considered.

Narrow Scenic Road will barely stand the amount of traffic using it now, Chrietzberg said.

Couple that with already impacted parking problems and it will become next to impossible to use the recently installed $25,000 beach access.

Findings from Monday's citizens advisory meeting will be presented to the Monterey County Planning Commission at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, July 8 in the supervisors chambers in the courthouse in Salinas.

Cachagua group will meet July 6

A CITIZENS advisory committee for the Cachagua area will hear results of a recently-completed questionnaire of residents at its July 6 meeting.

The meeting of the Cachagua Area Plan Citizens Advisory Committee will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, July 6 at the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co. building at Princes Camp.

More information can be obtained by calling Joel Panzer at the Monterey County Planning Department.

Request for columbarium before planners again

By NANCY HILLS

ALL SAINTS' Church may face some opposition from residents when it presents to the Carmel Planning Commission its plans for a columbarium on the church grounds.

The commission was introduced to the application at its June 10 meeting, but it was referred to the commission's land use committee.

The entire commission will consider it again at 3 p.m. Wednesday, July 8 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

Father Allan Wolter, representing the church, told the commission that the repository for cremated remains would be small and out of the public's sight.

But residents have written letters and protested the application at the land use committee June 22.

According to John Bencomo, assistant planner, most of the objections revolve around increased traffic and setting a precedent for other churches in town. Bencomo added that some questioned whether the columbarium would be used for Carmel residents only or for all members of All Saints' Church.

The code is "silent," Bencomo said, on whether it is an allowed use in the residential district — where the church is located.

The city code contains a list of allowed uses and states any not listed are prohibited. Columbariums and graveyards are not on that list.

However, churchs are listed and the question the commission must answer is whether a columbarium is a part of a church's function, therefore automatically permitted.

In other items, the commission will:

• Conduct a design review of plans for a Mrs. Field's Cookies store in the former location of The Cookie Place on the southside of Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets.

Classified as a specialty bakery, it is a permitted business in the central commercial zone.

• Decide whether Spencer's Stationery can use for display a portion of a building previously used for storage.

Jim Dougherty, Spencer's owner, may move his business to a building behind the Court of the Golden Bough on Ocean Avenue. The building includes a commercial space and a former apartment, which has been vacant for more than a year.

Because it has not been used as a residence in the past year, it no longer is subject to the city code, which prohibits changing a residence into a commercial use.

The apartment has been used as storage space.

• Ted and Bob Leidig's application for apartments over The Court of the Fountains has been continued.

Carmel Meadows building set for public hearing

NEXT THURSDAY will more than likely represent the last chance to present public testimony regarding a proposed building project adjacent to the Carmel Meadows.

It has been about six months since Stephen F. Williams was denied a building permit by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors. Williams had sought to build two houses and a guest cottage on his 5.28-acre parcel of land.

The Williams property is bordered on the north by the state-owned Odello West property and on the south by the Carmel Meadows subdivision.

Shortly after the board's denial last Nov. 19, Williams appealed to the county's Minor Subdivision Committee.

After several postponements requested by Williams property representatives, the committee met June 28 to begin taking public testimony.

That meeting was continued to 10:30 a.m., Thursday, July 9 in the supervisors chambers in the courthouse in Salinas.

At its July 9 meeting, the committee probably will exercise one of three options, according to Nick Chiulos, secretary of the minor subdivision committee and county planner.

The first would be to take in the newest testimony and then schedule a meeting in the future to come up with a decision. The second option would be to direct the planning staff to come up with findings. And thirdly, it could adopt a resoulution either for or against the project.

Preowned CALIFORNIA Mercedes-Benz

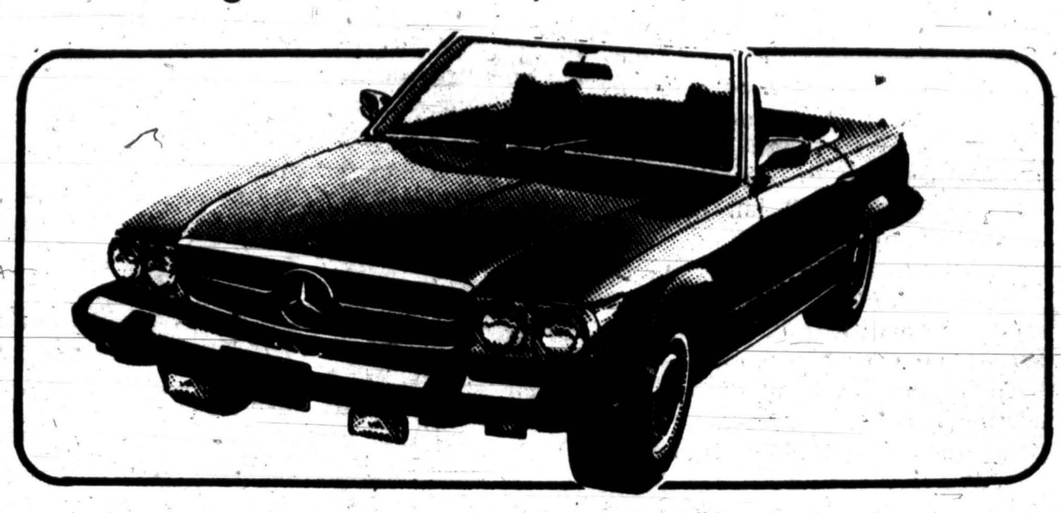
Roadsters, coupes, sedans...we have samples of all and each one is a standout. All are CALIFORNIA CARS that have never seen the hardships of EASTERN ice, sleet, snow or flood. Look at the rest, then compare with the best. Documentation on each of the following is available upon request.



Roadsters

'85 380SL Ivory/palomino leather. The convertible car with the removable hard top. Every bodies favorite roadster. And this one was sold new at our store and has complete records. Beautiful and in near new condition. #1LMF776 ..... $43,900

Coupes

'75 280C Ivory/palomino tex. One local Pebble Beach owner. This two-door, five-passenger coupe features a thrifty six-cylinder, dual overhead cam engine which delivers lots of power and zip. 80,400 miles with service records available, and in great shape. #990MHY $11,900

'76 280C Maple yellow/palomino tex. The sister to the above, except we forgot to add that this model sports the largest trunk capacity of any car we've seen. A Salinas car, property of its previous owner for over five years, and recently traded for one of our diesels. #IBM5966 ..... $12,900

Sedans

'76 450SE Silver blue/blue leather. Probably one of the finest 4-door cars ever manufactured. Nice balance between weight and wheelbase. One test drive will show you far better than words. #163RPY $15,500

'84 380SE Champagne/Palomino leather. 1-owner and all of the extras. A later version of the above. #88ROSES $31,500

'85 190E Champagne/palomino tex. The little wonder car nicknamed the "Baby Benz." But there's nothing small in the way this five-passenger, four-door sedan handles. Its spunky four-cylinder engine produces lots of power and good fuel economy, too. Former owner is a Stahl Motor Co., technician whose growing family needs a station wagon. #IMDL655 ..... $22,500

'80 450SEL Desert red/beige leather. Local banker's car that shows good care. This famous, roomy sedan is the one by which all others are measured. Truely a car built without compromise. Very low mileage and fun to drive. All the extras including a phone. #C44000 ..... $23,900

Diesels

'81 240D Dark blue/blue tex. Stick shift, four-door sedan with outstanding service record. This is the famous long-lived diesel many others have attempted to duplicate, but have fallen short. 68,000 miles and super shape. #ICZ55 ..... $13,500

'83 300SD Champagne/palomino leather. A one-owner Gilroy car traded to us recently for a new 420. In super shape and priced right. #IHYK312 ..... $27,900

Ice Cream Festival

THE 75TH Anniversary of All Saints' Church (a year-long celebration) was celebrated in high fashion last Saturday with an Ice Cream Festival that featured Baskin-Robbins ice cream, puppet shows, cake walks, antique car rides, face painting, a fashion show with Carmel Plaza merchants I. Magnin and Mark Fenwick, and a cake-judging contest. Heather Test, 10, (left) enjoys an ice cream cone, while (above) festival-goers were treated to rides around Carmel in several antique automobiles. On the opposite page brothers Jacob Maurer, 4 (top left), had already finished his hot dog before 3-year old Frankie could get one bite in. Winky the Clown works on a young face at the face-painting booth (top), while "Simple Sue" (Frances Sweeney) sports a pair of fancy shades as part of her clown getup. Funds raised from the event go to church youth groups, Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula and Battered Wives of the Monterey Peninsula. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Nieman brings opposing views to planning body

By NANCY HILLS

IN A bold move, Mayor Clint Eastwood nominated to the planning commission a man who has led the opposition against the changes in the general plan and has written editorials criticizing some the policies of the administration.

Howard Nieman, Jr. may seem like an unusual choice for some, but for Eastwood, it's not a problem.

"It doesn't bother me as much as other people," Eastwood said. "I haven't always agreed with him, but the kind of criticism he does deals with the issue in mind, not just putting down another opinion. He will find it different when he is up there at every planning commission."

In those types of meetings, Eastwood said, "someone always goes away frowning."

Eastwood praised Nieman's work on the Mayor's Advisory Committee, stating he has done an "excellent" job as chairman. Nieman will continue to chair that committee.

"He's the kind of guy that gives 190 percent to what he is doing," Eastwood said.

His appointment by Eastwood, Nieman said, "reflects the mayor's interest in bringing all sides into the planning commission. I think the mayor appreciates the way to solve some of the issues is to bring in all points of view where it can be discussed and acted upon," Nieman said.

Nieman's critique of the proposed general plan changes have drawn him the most public attention. Nieman believes that the loosening of land use restrictions in the plan is detrimental to constructive planning and abandons the city's powers to enforce its citizens wishes.

It is his opposition to the general plan changes that prompted Councilman Bob Evans to oppose the nomination and vote against Nieman at the June 26 city coucil meeting. Evans is the General Plan Review Committee chairman.

"I have the highest regard for Howard Nieman," Evans said, "but he has opposed the general plan review committee since the beginning."

Their philosophies are completely different, Evans said.

Nieman said Evans' vote against him does not trouble him.

"I can appreciate Mr. Evans' concerns," Nieman said, adding that "He voted his conscience." The less than unanimous vote does not dampen his enthusiasm for his new appointment.

"I think you can be more effective as a commissioner than speaking before the commission. As a commissioner, you can participate in the consensus building," he said.

Nieman believes he brings some unique qualities to the commission. As a private investor who also has worked as a real estate broker, he frequently has been involved in major development projects in other areas of the state.

"Good development can benefit a community but bad development can really hurt it," he said.

Many townships and areas have much stricter land use regulations than Carmel, Nieman said, and developers are able to create some fine projects.

"In this city, I don't think we have held the developers to a very high standard and that's not the way to get good development," he added. "I understand what developers need, how they look at a project, what the opportunities are. I think if you understand and focus the developers they can give you what you need."

That is why he is concerned about the city's general plan — the document that tells the builder or developer "what type and where" development is wanted.

"I don't think the function of the commission is to find a way around the code for applicants but to follow the code consistently and fairly for everyone," he said.

Since there is not much vacant land in Carmel, Nieman said, future development will probably focus on remodeling and expansion of existing structures.

Some of the issues facing the commission Nieman feels are important are:

• Second stories, which are currently under a moratorium in the central commercial district.

"I think the moratorium is a useful thing to do," Nieman said. "It gives the city time to consider changes in policy — particularly looking at the number of pending applications."

Second stories is a matter of "esthetics," Nieman said.

"The problem with second stories is they tend to block public and private views, increase the amount of cars without adequate parking and increase the number of people in a downtown which is already overcrowded," Nieman said.

"In this city, I don't think anyone would argue for three stories (except the already existing Pine Inn), Then why can't we argue for single stories?" he added.

If the right to restrict three stories is recognized, then the right to restrict to two stories because of the same concerns should also be recognized, he explained.

• "Proliferation" of certain types of businesses. Nieman objects to the removal of policies in the General Plan's Land Use Element to restrict certain types of businesses such as art galleries, T-shirt shops and antique stores.

"Many other towns do it (restrict certain businesses) and they have never been challenged in court," Nieman said.

• Failure of both the old and proposed general plan to address future problems clearly and give direction on some existing concerns. Examples he has given in the past include increasing the number of business spaces through division of larger locations, proposed Stanton Theater-type development and parking problems.

He feels the ordinances and general plan does not adequately address current problems.

"I think they need some substantive changes to reflect changes in land use patterns," Nieman said.

• Design review in the residential district.

Nieman opposes deleting residential design review from the general plan.

"The function of doing it is to protect everybody's rights. I don't believe you can prohibit someone from tearing down a cottage, but you can insure that what replaces it is built to in scale and does not detract from the property rights of the others around them," Nieman said.

Basically, Nieman feels there has been too much emphasis on the negative side of land use.

"People always look at the negative — that land use regulations take away something without looking at what it gives back," Nieman said.

What it gives back is protection for everyone and and better environment for the whole community, he explained.

New social club makes splashy debut in Carmel

A NEW social club made a splashy debut in Carmel June 21 with a "Summer Solstice Party" at the Mission Ranch Barn.

The Abalone Club, formerly called the 21 Up Club, was formed to offer the "mid-young" of Carmel (those over 21 and under 60 or so), a chance to get together, socialize and meet new faces. The debut party the group hosted was one way of accomplishing this.

"Our primary goal was to have a fun social event," said co-chairperson, Lisa Mitchell. "We had worked out a number of events we'd like to sponsor and with the good turnout we had at this party, other events will soon follow."

The party was well attended by members of the club as well as members of the recreation commission, city council and the recreation department. The core group of the Abalone Club, about 13 members, hoped to have gained many new members as a result of the party. Felicia Colton, chairman of the hospitality committee, said names and addresses were written on ticket stubs and they will all be invited to become members of the club.

Other members who actively participated in the party plans included: Jeff Bell, co-chairperson; Lisa McKaney, secretary; Leslie Bruhn, treasurer; Alex Londos, activities director; Kellie Miller, food chairman; Andrea Darin, decoration chairman; Nicole Duffel, entertainment and Liz Brown, publicity.

Music was provided by Kenny Stahl and Orchestra. Carol and Bob Benton demonstrated ballroom dancing techniques and Nicole Duffel created an impromptu aerobics class in the midst of the audience.

The party was a culmination of months of meetings by the core group to establish a means of getting the "mid-young" people of Carmel together. It was the brainchild of recreation commission member Maxine Jennings, who said there were a number of fine activities for those 18 and under at the Carmel Youth Center and activities for older citizens through the Carmel Foundation, but little for those "in-between" the youths and senior citizens.

"I wanted to get the 20 through 40-year-olds of Carmel together because I knew many of them would enjoy meeting with each other but didn't really have an outlet for it," Jennings explained. "I started with "think-tank sessions" among the 20-to-40 age group and they were enthusiastic enough to create the 21 Up Club which is now also known as the Abalone Club."

Participants of the "think-tank sessions" included the aforementioned party-planners as well as Howard Lindquist, Rita and Kelly Steele, Linda Lierman, Tom and Donna Huntington, Tim Allen, Mel Grimes and Richard Conklin.

It was decided at these meetings that the "young professionals" would form a group to plan activities for future social and recreational events to include summer volleyball, a Scrabble club, an exercise/dance program, swimming and casual, social gatherings. They also decided that in the near future they would like to become active in volunteer work in conjunction with city activities such as the youth center/Bingmobile, Forest Theater, the ice cream lick-in, the Sand Castle Contest, the Surfabout and Christmas tree-lighting ceremonies.

The group nominated officers pro-tem and committee members and presented themselves to the recreation commission in February. The commission was supportive of the group and voted to have them recognized. Interested community members offered to assist as advisors to aid in the formation of the group. They included Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo; assistant to the mayor, Sue Hutchinson; Jean Grace, Lucinda Lloyd, Virginia Burke, recreation commission members Laurie Schumann and Harriet Rowntree and Recreation Director Beth Kastrup.

"Our main goal is to have fun," Mitchell said. "We don't wish to make money, in fact. I think we barely broke even on the party, but we do want to continue providing social events that would bring us all together."

"I think the group is well on its way to establishing an outlet for social gatherings among their peers and that is basically what the Abalone Club is all about," Jennings added.

Currently the group is planning a volleyball/beach picnic at Carmel Beach in September. Persons interested in joining the Abalone/21 Up Club should contact Lisa Mitchell or Maxine Jennings.

CV Little League annual barbecue set for July 4

CARMEL VALLEY Little League's season winds down with final Minor League games slated for Friday, June 26. The Major League has already completed its season.

Now, however, the league is getting prepared for its annual Fourth of July barbecue and celebration.

The fun starts at 10 a.m. Saturday, July 4 at the Carmel Valley Little League Park with the Minor League All-Star game and continues throughout the day. The barbecue — a steak dinner at $7 or hamburger dinner for $3.50 — starts at noon. There will also be a raffle and plenty of baseball.

DOLLARS & SENSE

By Anthony Piazza & Marshall Bloom

Let's be capitalists

ONE OF the identifying marks of a super charged stock market is the way the rascals and their slick ideas begin to make the news. Last year Wall Street was rocked by the Boesky scandal. Today, several months later, we're assured that we haven't heard the last about that insider trading ring.

Locally one hears rumors about hot deals in obscure stocks. When people stop you in the parking lot of the Del Monte Shopping Center to obtain information on the most puffed-up of penny stocks, you begin to worry about the continued health of the Great Bull. Not to mention the sanity of your fellow man.

It seems apropos, therefore, to ignore the current swirl of news and rethink what this stock market mania is really all about. For it's true, dear peninsula readers, that the market seems like a great casino, a series of bets and counter-bets, a grand national game of chance. But we owe it to you and ourselves to reconsider what it means to our economic well-being to have a stock market. Or for that matter, what it means to have a choice between stocks and bonds. Why a bond market?

Let's start off by examining a word we've heard all our lives but perhaps never connected with the hysteria some folks associate with trading stocks. That word is capital. Somehow capital is essential to our economic and political system. But what really is this capital? Why are we capitalists?

We're capitalists because we allow for and encourage the accumulation of goods and wealth. The other side allows for and forces the distribution of goods and wealth. The key words here are accumulation and distribution. A capitalist is an accumulator of worldly goods. When our wives "shop until they drop," they're practicing the capitalist gospel.

Jokes aside, however, our national economy requires the accumulation of our individual bundles of money in order to remain healthy. When a growing company can no longer satisfy its need to provide more services and better products to its growing customer base by lining up at the bank for yet another loan, it decides to go to the capital markets. And it accumulates dollars—yours and mine, through direct purchases or through managed mutual fund purchases—in order to form new capital.

Now an interesting thing happens when a company goes public (i.e., goes to the public). It exchanges a piece of the company for the dollars you invest in its capital formation. Your piece of the company comes to you in shares of common stock, and these shares represent your ownership. Or equity, as it's most commonly called.

If, however, the company does not currently care to share ownership with you, it can still use the capital markets to borrow from you and issue a bond that represents its indebtedness.

Voila! We have stocks and we have bonds. But because you require liquidity in your investments in order to dispose of your holdings on any normal business day, a wonderful mechanism has been established called the stock market, nothing more really than an auction whereby stocks that were issued to accumulate or create equity capital can now be sold and traded among interested parties. The bond market for previously issued bonds is more of a negotiated than an auction market but we think you get the point.

Far from being a place where irresponsible people speculate on the magical rise or fall of hot companies, the stock market is an organized piece of our country's economic puzzle. If you think of yourself as a capitalist rather than a speculator, you'll probably have a better appreciation for what the stock market can do for you.

Red and white celebration

THE AMERICAN Red Cross Carmel-by-the-Sea Chapter held a rare social evening to celebrate 50 years of ambulance service offered to local communities. The Carmel Mission Ranch Barn was festively decorated with red and white balloons and floral centerpieces.

After a year of fund raising during the depths of the Depression the first ambulance was bought in 1937. Remember that year? Gone With The Wind came out and the Golden Gate Bridge opened. The amazing part — Carmel was the only chapter in the US of A to have an ambulance. It still is! Celebrating at the party were Carmel Valley and Big Sur representatives, who also offer free Red Cross ambulance service to their local citizens.

Forty-seven calls were received that first year and in 1953 the ambulance maintenance costs totaled $38. Since 1937 there have been a total of 1,600 ambulance volunteers. Don Nelson, current head of ambulance volunteers, said his job is made very easy because of the fine cooperation he receives.

So, what do you think happened during the party? That's right...an emergency call. Carmel Fire Chief Robert Updike and John Jacoby were there until it was time for them to appear onstage. But, as always, in time of need, they climbed into the ambulance and answered the call.

Filling in was Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood, who said, "I thought I had the wrong night when I saw the ambulance go by. Here I was all dressed up in suit and tie, so I came over anyway."

The 151 volunteers attending the ranch gathering had a great time visiting during the social hour before sitting down to a delicious barbecue dinner of chicken, ribs, fish, salads, fruit and a slice of cake decorated with "Help Celebrate 50 Years of Ambulance Service."

Outgoing chair James Heisinger, Jr. welcomed guests and former Carmel Mayor Barney Laiolo gave the invocation. The business meeting was casually kept to a minimum and new officers were elected post-haste.

Following in the footsteps of his father Art, Alan McEwen is chapter photographer and showed his father's slides beginning back in 1937. The fun came when attempts were made to identify volunteers in the old photos.

Red Cross inspires continuity of service — three generations were at the dinner. Mr. and Mrs. James Heisinger, Sr., Jim Jr., and grandmother Pauline Heisinger.

Earl Hudson received a certificate in recognition of his fund-raising efforts and Ad Addleman (chapter manager) presented a bouquet of red roses to Dorothy von Meier for 37 years of chapter service. Dorothy said demurely, "I feel like a bride."

Board officers for the coming year are chairwoman Phyllis Crockett, vice chairman James Heisinger, Jr., second vice chairwoman Tiny DeKay, secretary Elinor Laiolo, treasurer, Bruce Dunlap. New on the board are Donna Alonzo, Gina Garnero, John Perry, Dr. Mimi Fields, Peter Lyon, Lee Warner and Mollye Walker.

QUOTA OF CARMEL CELEBRATES 30TH BIRTHDAY

TAke 30 or so professional and executive women who are dedicated to community service and the end result is impressive. The Quota Club of Carmel is a member of Quota International founded in 1919, making it the oldest service club in the USA.

Sunday afternoon Carmel Quotarians celebrated 30 years of service in the area with a meeting/party at Carmel Woman's Club. President Allana L. Corbat welcomed honored guests who came to join the celebration — Seaside Mayor Lancelot McClair, Monterey Mayor Dan Albert, Barbara Shipnuck. Joy Junsay (from Sen. Henry Mello's office), several district and national officers of Quota, friends and a number of husbands.

Ms. Corbat introduced Lois Smith (past governor of the 12th district), who has served on the national board. Mrs. Smith remembers well when the Carmel Chapter was founded. She was there and she spoke of her pride in the local chapter and in her personal pride of being a Quotarian herself.

Judith McCarthy-Petroff (past club president and current chair of the speech and hearing service offered by Quota), listed the community service groups this club has supported in the past year: Child Abuse Center of Seaside, Monterey Convalescent Hospital (as well as others), Rape Crisis Center, Women Against Domestic Violence and Hospice.

Quota continues with its "Shatter Silence" program for the hearing and speech impaired. They installed a FM Listening System in Sunset Center. Those who need it have only to check at the box office. Hearing equipment was installed by Quota in Community Hospital. Again, for the asking. A phonic ear was purchased for use by the Monterey School Systems and books were bought for Toro Park School of the Deaf. They also pay Jonie Bishop to do "signing' for KMST-TV programs.

Their answer to the question "Why do we need service clubs?" is: "As long as there are handicapped persons, lonely elderly, young people eager to learn, as long as ther is a need for the personal caring of a fellow human being a Quota club provides the gift and the giver which government and charitable organizations cannot."

Quota motto is "We Share." Year after year they prove that

EXOTIC JADE AND PEARLS

Jade, pearls and tea sound Oriental and intriguing. The Lodge at Pebble Beach invited Gump's VP William Goulet and jewelry director Marilu Klar to the B & T Club to enlighten invited guests on two classics which people find enhancing to their appearance — pearls and jade.

"Diamonds may be a girl's best friend," but pearls and jade are classic and always "right."

To convince people how happy he was to be in Pebble, Mr. Goulet said he had just spent eight days in Texas where the temperature was 102 degrees every day. There was a collective sigh of gratitude for the chilly fog hanging over Stillwater Cove.

Mr. Goulet gave a bit of history of Gump's which started in 1861 just after the Gold Rush as a picture framing studio that also gilded ceilings. One young man was hired as gilder and when he tolds his wife she said, "You know heights make you dizzy, you will fall off the ladder and break a leg. I'll tell you what we'll do, we will sell the linens I make." That is just what they did — selling on a street corner until they opened I. Magnin as a neighbor of Gump's.

Mr. Gump (technically blind) started selling paintings for his frames and then fell in love with Oriental art (which was seen only in Boston where ship captains had brought it back from Europe). The rest is history. What everyone may now know is that Gump's makes not only the lamps it sells but all the furniture is built totally by hand and thus can be customized to any size preference.

Town and Country magazine wrote recently, "Gump's is one of the finest specialty stores in the world and the jewels are truly unusual." This was the perfect lead-in to the introduction of "Gump's living treasure, Marilu Klar," who replied, "I am too young to be a living treasure."

Ms. Klar's talk began with the history of jade (called nephrite until the mid 1700s) and the startling fact that no jade is found in China where it is known as "the stone of heaven." Found in many countries including the USA, it is brought to China for carving. The seven colors of jade (in order of value) are green, lavender, blue, yellow, red, white and black. Green is the most desirable color and the most difficult to recognize as it is easily confused with other stones.

Jadite, discovered in northern Burma in 1750, is cut into huge slabs that are carried down the river to Rangoon once a year for a sealed bid auction. If a jadite bracelet, symbol of long life, should crack, the Chinese remove it immediately and refuse to wear it as that would indicate a break in life.

Ms. Klar has covered the world to buy rubies, emeralds, sapphires, tourmalines, coral, semi-precious stones, pearls and jade. She went to the Soviet Union for Siberian nephrite and sent 1,000 lbs. to Hong Kong to be cut by one of the three cutters she considers the best in the world. The cutters (despite child labor laws) start at the age of 10 and are the best due to a steady hand, a straight eye, and no fear of making a mistake.

As for pearls, the most popular color is rose. In this country the white pearl is preferred but the creamy pearl is the favorite in Europe, the Mid-East and other sections of the world. Whether your pearls are white, cream, blue, pink or black, silk thread is ideal for stringing and frequent cleaning is recommended. Just jiggle in baking soda and lukewarm water, rinse and hang up to dry.

Most people think of Japan when pearls are mentioned. Fresh water pearls originally came from Mississippi River mussels and for many years these mussels were imported to Japan for their cultured pearls until the Japanese learned to raise them successfully. The Japanese pearl market is seriously threatened by China. Even though Japan has refused to share technical knowledge, China has made tremendous strides with its vast source of cheap labor and unlimited fresh pure water as Japan fights pollution.

One hundred and twenty-five ladies and gentlemen were allowed to fondle and view at close range exotic jewelry pieces before teacakes, chocolate-coated strawberries and tea were served.

LITERATI GALA

"The first day of summer as the (unseen) sun reached its high," Raymond Mungo, of Creative States Quarterly and originator of Writers Jamboree, introduced two successful fiction writers — Armistead Maupin and Tom Robbins to local writers in the Monterey Sheraton Ballroom. The writers came prepared to answer questions on fiction, life, death and goofiness.

Tom captured our attention with such statements as "imagination keeps us alive," and "all writers are liars — not like politicians — writers are enlightened liars." With "continued adieu" he introduced Armistead who said, "Pretend we are Tammy and Jim and we will answer your questions. On second thought, don't pretend we are Tammy and Jim because I know which one I will be."

Armistead is drawn to writing by the story-telling aspect and likes to read his own writing aloud. "That way," he said, "if I come across something that makes me gag I know it is wrong." Mr. Maupin has published Tales of the City, Babycakes, and Significant Others.

Tom, an art major, intuitively felt he should not study creative writing (although he knew he wanted to be a writer before he started school) was an art critic in Seattle before writing his first book. He said he has to create "a sense of theater" to entice him into that lonely room every day where he tries to write like "jazz music."

His favorite institution is the post office because for many years he was convinced that a letter would arrive one day that would change his life. One day that happened. He went to the P.O. and found a letter from a publisher who wanted him to write a book.

Bits that stuck in the mind were: "Life is always imitating art, so be careful what you write," "We should all practice on being an optimist," "Whom the Gods would destroy they first make popular," "Journalism is concerned with communication and fiction with revelation," and "Writers are self-driven toward excellence."

Mr. Robbin's books include Another Roadside Attraction, Even Cowgirls Get The Blues, Still Life With Woodpecker and Jitterbug Perfume.

Both writers write slowly and Tom described the process as similar to taking a shower in a cheap motel. "You fiddle with the knobs until you get the temperature just right then

TIFANNY'S HEART CAKE TAKES TOP HONORS

The winning recipe for the Ice Cream Festival bake-off at All Saints' Church in Carmel was won by Mrs. Richard Mueller of Carmel Highlands, with her recipe for Tiffany's Heart Cake.

Second prize went to Mrs. Montford Bryan of Carmel, and a tie for third place went to Mrs. Virigina Parker and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, also of Carmel. Sixteen cakes in all were entered, and judges included All Saints' parishioners Joseph Pagano, The Rev. Allan Wolter, Nancy Bernhard, Charles (Pat) Casey, and The Rev. Paul Danielson from the All Saints' Day School. The cake baking contest was created and headed by Mrs. Sidney Williams of Carmel.

THE J.O. Handley Award is given each year by the Carmel Rotary Club for exceptional contributions to the community. Winning this year was none other than Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood, who was presented a $1,000 check from Merv Sutton. The award, given by the club to those individuals who have "substantially contributed to the quality of life," is given to the individual, who in turn acts as beneficiary to a local charity. Eastwood donated his $1,000 to the Carmel Youth Center. Last year's winner, Barney Laiolo, donated his to Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. Previous winners have included Ken White, Russ Harris, Cappy Martin, Virginia Stanton and Dan Yurkovich. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Tiffany's Heart

Makes 8-12 servings, requires a heart-shaped pan.

BATTER: 3/4 cup ground pecans
1/3 cup unsifted all purpose flour
1/3 cup sugar
1/3 cup light brown sugar, packed
3 eggs, room temperature
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
1 teaspoon unsalted butter
6 ounces semisweet chocolate
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon rum
1 recipe chocolate butter glaze (to follow)
1 cup fresh raspberries, room temperature

METHOD: Position rack in lower third of oven, preheat to 350 degrees. Cut parchment pattern the size of the pan; grease bottom and sides of pan; dust with flour; insert parchment. Add flour to ground pecans; measure sugars and set aside. Separate eggs into separate bowls; melt butter and chocolate in small pan over low heat; stir in the water and blend until smooth.

Transfer chocolate mixture to large bowl and add sugars. Cool for 5 minutes. Then stir in the egg yolks until incorporated. Add rum and blend. Pour in the nuts and flour mix and mix together.

Whip the egg whites until frothy (about 30 seconds). Increase the speed and add the 1 teaspoon sugar. Whip until soft peaks form. Spoon a third of the whites into the chocolate mix, and stir-fold with a spatula. Then fold in remainder. Pour into prepared pan and smooth top. Bake for 25 minutes

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL FOUNTAIN FUND

Human hearts are boosting the Memorial Fountain thermometer up to thousand-dollar mark! Very generously have the people of Carmel responded. One well-known citizen planked down ten dollars and beamed approval at us as he said, "For God sake let's finish it."

And now comes the big news of Harrison Godwin's dance to be at the La Playa next Thursday evening. Admission will be 50 cents. Everything will be donated — there will be no charge for heat or light. We understand that Moffat's orchestra will furnish the music. How's that for community spirit?

$1,000 is needed for the Memorial. We have raised $520 to date. Let's take a long breath and pull all together and go shouting "over the top." 'At-a-boy!

CARMEL TO CELEBRATE AT MISSION CLUB ON FOURTH

Imagine an "artistic" Fourth of July!

But that is just what is going to be held at the Mission Ranch Club Sunday, July 4th.

You will sink your teeth in a steak cooked by a "genuine Carmel artist," and the extensive grounds will be decorated according to the best of Carmel's artistic tradition.

The American Legion and the Mission Ranch Club are sparing no pains in making this gala event "different again." The Club is the ideal place to hold it. There are fields surrounding, and fireworks may be used with safety, and since the ranch is outside city limits, anything goes.

By Ford and Corum Jackson are in charge of organizing the affair, and they promise a show well worth the price of admission, 75 cents, which includes the barbeque.

FRIENDSHIP ABOUNDS AS PACIFIC AIR LINES STARTS NEW SERVICE

This week is Monterey-San Diego Friendship Week. It is also Seaside-San Diego, Pacific Grove-San Diego, Del Rey Oaks-San Diego, Sand City-San Diego, and San Francisco-San Diego Friendship Week.

But it is not Carmel-by-the-Sea-San Diego Friendship Week.

This distressing state of affairs came about because Mayor pro tempore Francis Whitaker declined to issue a proclamation proposed by the advertising director of Pacific Airlines, Mr. Robert J. Dixon, who is friendly with everybody, and who wanted to be sure that when the Inaugural Flight of the Airlines new direct service between San Diego and the Peninsula arrived last Saturday morning, the atmosphere would be congenial.

FIRE DANGERS HIGH FOR JULY 4TH

Fire officials representing all state recreational facilities have expressed great concern because of the high fire risk caused by the drought.

It is illegal to carry any type of pyrotechnics into forests, parks or recreational wilderness areas, officials stress, adding that an apparently harmless "sparkler" may be all it takes to start a conflagration.

Campers and day users of recreational areas are urged to obtain permits for fires when required and be sure any fires are out and thoroughly doused before leaving the campsite.

CARMEL BRACES FOR ANOTHER JULY 4TH

Armed with extra police officers and ordinances to control parking, fireworks, and beach fires, the city of Carmel is braced for another Fourth of July onslaught.

"Pray for rain," said Mayor Charlotte Townsend as she comtemplated the approach of Independence Day.

This year, the city council has taken a number of steps to blunt the destructive effects wrought upon the village — particularly in the beach area — by hordes of celebrants which have numbered as high as 10,000.

until the top is soft but not liquid in the center. Do not overbake.

Remove pan from oven and cool for 15-20 minutes. Tilt and rotate pan and tap on counter to release. If it doesn't give, run a small spatula round the side. Cover the pan with a heart-shaped cardboard and invert cake onto it. Remove parchment liner.

Prepare chocolate-butter glaze and allow it to rest one hour before frosting cake.

CHOCOLATE BUTTER GLAZE: Makes one scant cup and can be doubled if you prefer thick frosting. (The remainder may be refrigerated and used at another time.)

4 ounces semisweet chocolate
2 ounces unsweetened chocolate
3 ounces (6 tablespoons) unsalted butter

METHOD: Chop the chocolates into matchstick-size pieces. Place first the butter, then the chocolates in the top of a double boiler. Fill the bottom with hot tap water and place on the stove over very low heat to melt. Watch closely and stir occasionally to blend smoothly. When liquid, remove from the stove and cool just until body temperature. While it sits, it will thicken. When ready to spread, soften again over warm water, but no warmer than body temperature.

Pour the glaze onto the center of the cake (reserve 3 tablespoons to coat berries), and spread with a metal icing spatula.

Warm reserved glaze slightly. Place raspberries on top and gently slide a spatula under them, pouring the glaze over and around them. Repeat this three times. The object is to coat some of the raspberries, not all. Carefully scoop the raspberries on top of the cake.

Store the cake at room temperature.

BofA OFFERS SPECIAL REAL ESTATE LOANS TO FIRE VICTIMS

In an effort to assist the owners of the destroyed or damaged homes located north of the 17-Mile Drive area of Pebble Beach, Bank of America is offering special real estate loans to the fire victims.

Key among the many features of the program are priority processing and elimination of points on the bank's adjustable real estate loans to affected homeowners, said Bonnie Proctor, vice president and manager of the bank's Monterey main office. "Realizing the financial impact that this tragedy has imposed on the fire victims, the bank has temporarily suspended mortgage payments for its customers who suffered loss in the fire."

"We want to do our part in helping the victims of the Pebble Beach fire rebuild as soon as possible. Since its foundation in 1904 by A.P. Gianinni, Bank of America has had a long tradition of providing financial assistance to disaster victims in California and helping them get on with their lives. This tradition started with the 1906 San Francisco Earthquake and has continued through the 1986 winter floods when our bank provided a variety of relief services to victims and affected communities," Proctor said.

Proctor said she has also offered further assistance, such as office space, to governmental and private agencies in their relief efforts.

The real estate loan program will be administered out of the Monterey main office at 200 East Franklin St. Residents seeking loan information should call 646-5842 and ask for Nancy Quackenbush or Diana Albert.

NAVAL POSTGRADUATE SCHOOL "HAMS" AND OTHERS TO TEST

Not long after a real performance, the NPS Amateur Radio Club will fire up the generators, string up antennas, and operate radios on the beach. The event is the annual Field Day, a practical and popular exercise to test amateur radio operators' skill and training in providing communications assistance to individuals and agencies during times of disaster.

Their skills were employed for real, during the recent Pebble Beach fire when they provided communications assistance to the CDF for four days. The fire totally destroyed a prime communications site on Huckleberry Hill, owned by MPTV Cable who granted use of the site to the club more than 10 years ago.

If readers are interested in becoming hams, the NPS club offers radio license preparation classes. The courses require only an interest in amateur radio, and no previous electronics background is necessary. For further information regarding classes, please phone Jerry at 649-5905.

The NPS Amateur Radio Club meets in room 400, Spanegal Hall, at the Naval Postgraduate School. Meetings are the second Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. The public is encouraged to attend.

For further information call Pat Barthelow at 394-2016 or Pat Grover at 394-5049.

COUNTY SYMPHONY RECEIVES $1.2 MILLION GIFT

Mrs. Peter C. Wright, president of Monterey County Symphony Association, announced at the annual meeting, June 18, a gift of $1.2 million from the Noxon Trust. This is believed to be the largest single gift ever received by an arts organization in the Central Coast area. The board of directors of the association announced that the funds would be placed in the symphony's endowment and cannot be used directly for day-to-day operational expenses. However, the income from invested funds will be applied to expand the symphony's music programs and activities throughout the county. Therefore, it is necessary to intensify the symphony's fund raising to both sustain the rising costs of production and its planned musical out-reach program.

The Noxon Trust was established by a supporter of the arts and the symphony in particular, Eugene I. Noxon, a Carmel resident. The symphony endowment now stands at $1,707,856.

The symphony board has adopted a preliminary budget of $526,000 for the 1987-88 fiscal year. Approximately $250,000 must be raised with contributions from individuals, foundations, government grants and business firms. Earned income, that is sales and guild contributions, is expected to be $150,000. Income from investments will provide another $100,000 and miscellaneous will amount to $25,000.

CHRIS BIASON, 13, of Carmel gets his kicks in as a member of the Monterey Peninsula Turkeys youth soccer team. Biason is one of four players from Carmel (including Danny Luster, 15), competing on the team, which currently sports a 4-0 record after downing San Jose Chargers last week. Upcoming games (all free and held at Los Arboles Sports Complex in Marina) include those against Gilroy, Cambria and San Martin.

Carmel Valley resort opens

IT'S BEEN a long haul, but Carmel Valley Ranch Resort opened its doors in June and is doing a brisk business.

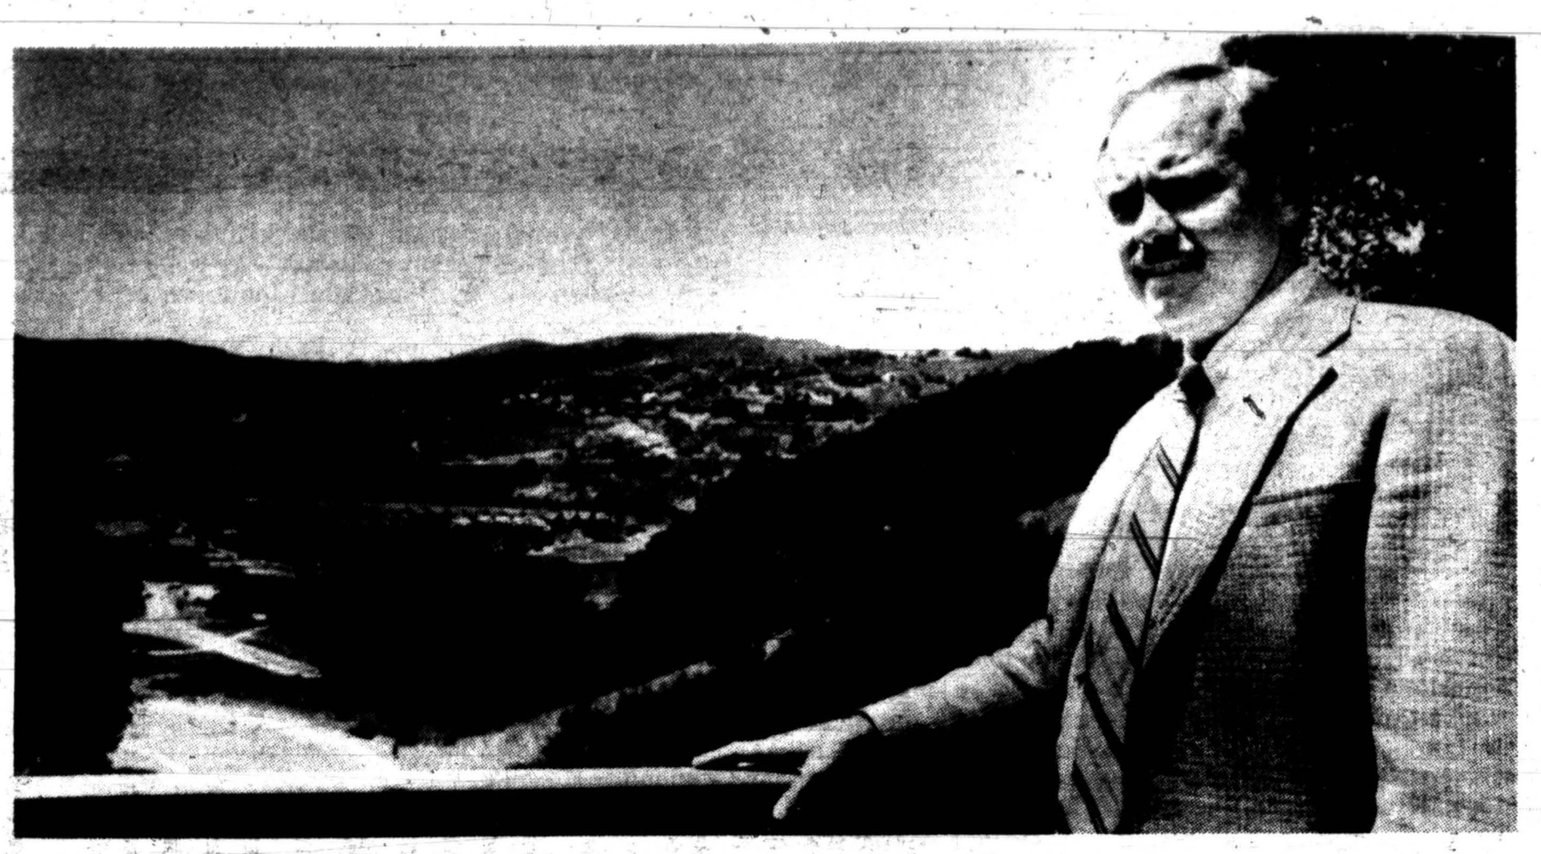
Landmark Land Co. began construction on its newest resort in October 1986.

General Manager Cal Jepson was pleased to announce the first week was already booked.

The resort, uses the 18-hole Carmel Valley Ranch golf course and the tennis club is designed to be "almost like a private retreat," Jepson said.

"We're a total experience — the setting, private golf, private tennis and a high level of service," Jepson said.

The resort, tucked away in the hills directly above the Carmel Valley Ranch development on Carmel Valley Road, is behind the ranch's guarded gates and is inaccessable to the general public, Jepson explained. That creates an atmosphere of privacy and security.



CAL JEPSON, Carmel Valley Ranch Resort general manager, shows off one of the expansive views from the resort. Jepson said he is "very happy" with the now completed 100-suite resort. "It's everything we hoped it would be," he said. (Holly McFarland photo.)

The resort includes a lodge complete with a living room-like cocktail lounge, intimate restaurant, private dining or boardroom, gift shop, ballroom, and swimming pool.

The clubhouse serves the 100 luxury suites scattered throughout a setting of mature trees and with expansive views of the valley.

There are 88 one-bedroom suites, eight one and two-bedroom suites each with private outdoor spas and two conference suites, also with private spas.

Every suite contains wood-burning fireplaces, a fully-stocked wetbar and a refrigerator in the living room, remote control color televisions in the bedrooms and living rooms, two-line telephones and security entrance systems.

The suites are furnished with a combination of antiques and contemporary furniture — " just like somebody's home," Jepson said.

In some of the more luxurious accomodations, two-way fireplaces can bathe both the bedroom and bathroom with flickering firelight. Hardwood floors and Oriental carpets also grace some of finer suites.

On the beds are handmade quilts by the Amish and in the bathrooms plush terry cloth bathrobes with the Carmel Valley Resort oak tree emblem embossed on the pocket.

In addition to the one at the lodge pool, four spas are located throughout the complex for easy access to all the guests.

•

"WE WANTED to make the amenities so somebody could stay and never have to leave," Jepson said.

Share your home with a foreign student

By opening your heart and home to a cultural exchange student, you can open the door to a whole new family abroad.

These high school students, aged 15-18, come to America in need of a family they can share their hopes, dreams, and life with. If your family hosts one of these students and then should decide to visit the country of the student you hosted, rest assured you will receive a royal welcome from the family.

Imagine the gratitude of a family who has entrusted the care of their child to you for a whole school year, or second semester. No words can describe, or measure the gratitude of that family.

The Youth Exchange Service is a nonprofit organization that provides our students with exceptional accidental/medical insurance. YES also arranged enrollment for the students at the high school nearest you. Our students provide their own spending money, leaving the host family responsible for providing love, understanding, and a home.

Help one of these high achieving students learn what the American family stands for while creating a bond of international friendship for life.

For more information about our tax-deductible program contact: The Youth Exchange Service, World Trade Center Bld., 350 S. Figueroa St., Ste. 257-P, Los Angeles, CA 90071. Or telephone 1-800-533-0656, in L.A. (213) 617-0800.

Burn permits now required

Roy Perkins, ranger-in-charge of the San Benito-Monterey Ranger Unit of the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (CDF), announced that burning permits were required as of May 1, for all incinerator and outdoor burning.

Burning permits to burn in small piles and incinerators were not required during the winter months. Permits are required for agricultural burning year round in all jurisdictions.

This notice applies to the area protected by Salinas Rural Fire Protection District and the CDS protection area in southern Monterey County and San Benito County. Burning permits are required year round in all other areas of Monterey County. Permits are available at local fire stations during normal working hours - 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

BUSINESS BEAT
BY NANCY HILLS

The experience begins when a guest arrives at the Carmel Valley Ranch gate where they give the guard on duty their name. The guard contacts the lodge, which has someone waiting to greet each arrival by name. In a lobby, reminiscent of a large home, the pre-registered guests sign-in on elegant furnishing rather than a hotel-like registration desk.

From there, they are taken to their suite and can indulge in golf, tennis, swimming or just relaxing. The lodge will provide transportation to and from any activity the guest desires.

The lodge restaurant serves breakfast, lunch and dinner; the cuisine is something Jepson is very proud of.

"It's second to none," he said.

Guests can also relax in the spacious "cocktail lounge" furnished with soft armchairs and sofas. There is no stand-up bar to mar the illusion of sitting in a private home.

If guests decide they don't want to leave the comfort of their rooms, 24-hour room service is available.

Large parties can also be accomodated. The ballroom, which can be divided into small rooms, seats about 225 to 250 persons, Jepson said. All types of events can be catered to — everything form a western barbecue, complete with chuckwagon, to a '50s party.

The resort is owned and operated by Landmark Land Co., developers of Carmel Valley Ranch, which has plenty of experience in pampering resort lovers. Landmark also owns and operates La Quinta Hotel Golf & Tennis Resort in La Quinta, Mission Hills Country Club in Rancho Mirage, Oak Tree Golf Club and Oak Tree Country Club, both in Edmond, Okla.; Belle Terre Country Club, City of LaPlace, La.; PGA West, La Quinta; The Waterford Hotel, Oklahoma City, Okla.; and the Palm Beach Polo and Country Club, West Plam Beach, Fla.

JUNIOR

Rita Shugart has had a new addition to her "family." This is not the kind you change the diapers for — though it can take as much care.

R. K. Junior, on Lincoln between Fifth and Sixth, is her newest apparel shop — offering contemporary clothing for the pre-teen on up. It complements, Shugart said, her shop R. K. Shugart on Dolores.

"I've been having so much fun with R. K. Shugart and it seemed like such a natural extension," Shugart said, explaining her decision to open another store.

Three teenage daughters also helps make it seem like a natural extension, I'm sure. Two of her daughters, Mia and Dana, will be working in the store as will Jill, who will be working there part-time.

"I'm trying to carry lines not generally found on the peninsula," Shugart said, with items that are "new and unique."

Lines include Ton Sur Ton, Mitsu, White on White, Moda Frescha and Tramway. Styles range from casual to dressy.

To get just the right mood for the store, Shugart transformed the former location of Carmel Needleworks into a bit of the early '60s, complete with an upbeat atmosphere, jukebox and sodas for the asking.

Shugart had been partners with Donna Fernandez in Carmel Needleworks, but they decided to close the store when Fernandez wanted to try something else and expand her horizons. She now works in R. K. Shugart and seems to be having a very good time.

Monterey String Quartet performs

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 7, the Carmel Art Association will sponsor a concert by the Monterey String Quartet. This is the fourth in a series of concerts offered free to the public as part of the year-long celebration of the 60th anniversary of the Carmel Art Association.

Refreshments will follow the concert, to be presented at the CAA galleries on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues, Carmel. For more information, call 624-6176.

CARMEL VOICE

By Sam Salerno

Pros and cons

IT WAS appalling to watch in disbelief on TV a pit bull tearing into the arm of a woman who was investigating the dog and its owner. The pit bull crushed her hand and punctured her breast while the dog's master watched. Thank goodness for a neighbor who beat the dog off.

I'm not against pit bulls (having raised German Shepherds), but I'm against how they are trained by some owners. Any dog can be trained to be vicious, including terriers, boxers, and pit bulls. The owners are responsible for their actions. If dogs are vicious, they should be penned or should wear a muzzle, or be on a leash away from likely suspects. So pit bull owners, get your act together!

MANY LOCALS ATTEND U.S. OPEN

Made the trek to the Olympic Club for the first round of the U.S. Open with Mike Roseto (Golf Arts & Imports), his brother Jim, and Bob Carlisle, owner of the Village Corner Restaurant. We were lucky to follow first-round leader Ben Crenshaw. Saw Dick McClean there...former Carmel touring pro who now works with Mark Rolfing at Kapalua on Maui. Also at the U.S. Open were Dick Reynolds, Greg Cole and Ron and Trish Keister, who frequent our town regularly from Foster City. Had to laugh at Lee Trevino who missed the cut there. He complained that he couldn't hit it long enough anymore and then goes 12-under in the Sammy Davis Greater Hartford Open this past week. If the PGA golfers played an "Olympic"-type course every week, there would be no tour. They usually play what an oldtime golfer called "tennis courts."

BACK IN TOWN

Two lovely women once were in business in Carmel are back in town, one from the L.A. area and the other from San Francisco. Elizabeth Ellison is back working at The Spot in The Barnyard. She formerly owned Shear Creations at The Barnyard. She'll be doing hair styling and will also be conducting seminars on how one can better his or her appearance. If you've been down, she'll give you pointers on how to get your life back on a positive note. The other returnee is Gail Lehman, of Gail Lehman Associates, winner of two international designer awards who returns from San Francisco where she worked for a year. She designs for homes and offices and she says, "I'm happy to be back in Carmel." Who wouldn't be? I know her friends are elated about her return, as are the friends of Elizabeth Ellison.

MARK MURPHY

Tomorrow night on the boulevard at the Crossroads, you can enjoy a "free" concert with Mark Murphy and the Smith Dobson Trio. It'll start at 7 p.m. Mark's been around a few seasons and his many hit LPs attest to his greatness. Sam Stanley, advertising, publicity, and promotional manager for the Crossroads, has been doing a herculean job getting this "special" booking to run smoothly. She's a highly-qualified person and it's nice to see such talent gracing our community. KRML is co-sponsoring the Murphy affair and we'll be on hand for the event. They've asked me to lend my "basso profundo" and I shall accommodate them. This is the start of the summer concerts at the Crossroads so don't miss it.

RICHARD SAWICKI PAINTINGS

Richard Sawicki, who is from Poland and received his master of arts degree from Wroclaw University and now resides in Pacific Grove, will have a special showing of his paintings at Beeches' Gallery in Carmel this Sunday from 4 to 7 p.m. Richard has an exceptional talent for portraiture although his talent does not preclude his painting other subject matters. His brush becomes equally vigorous in the handling of nature studies, figures, landscapes, nudes or architecture. Mr. Sawicki's horizons in the art world appear to be limitless. Catch this show, you'll love it!

A LOT OF STRESS

Who was it who said the children today are under too much stress having to compete in today's rigid society? That's bull! Kids today have it made in the shade, as the old saying goes. They get the best education (if they want it), are spoiled by their parents (yours truly included), attend the best universities, make good money while going to school or during semester break, and usually have jobs waiting for them when they're through with school. Those who can't afford to go to college, can get scholarships or grants (if their grades are good). Yes, folks, children today are under a lot of stress. Baloney! Their parents are under stress worrying about why their children are under so much stress!

See you next week, if I'm not under too much stress.

Selective Service System

DO YOU KNOW AN 18-YEAR OLD MAN?

If you do, he should know that he is required to register with the Selective Service System. Young men born on or after January 1, 1960 must register within 30 days of their 18th birthday. All it takes is five minutes to fill out the simple form at the local post office.

So if you have a student, son, relative or neighbor who is 18, or about to turn 18, make sure they know about Selective Service registration.

For posters, brochures and speakers, contact the Selective Service System, Washington, D.C. 20435.

Registration. It's quick. It's easy. And it's the Law.

OBITUARIES

Milton M. Mellon

Memorial services took place June 16 at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel, for Milton Michael Mellon of Carmel, who died June 13 at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 81.

Born Aug. 25, 1905 in Peru, Ill., he came to Carmel from Thousand Oaks two years ago. Prior to that, he made his home in Westmont, Ill.

Before retiring in 1971, he was a machinist with Western Electric Co., making telephones for AT&T. He was a member of Telephone Pioneers with AT&T and he was an elder in the Millard Avenue Presbyterian Church in Chicago.

Survivors include his wife of 60 years, Wanda; three daughters, Dolores Brdlik of Half Moon Bay, Barbara Wermuth of Carmel, and Judith O'Connell of Simi Valley; a brother, Wilbur Mellon of Chicago Ridge, Ill.; six grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren. A daugther, Patricia Mae Mellon died in 1963.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Helen S. Pitman

Services took place June 7 at the Paul Mortuary, with private burial at El Carmelo Cemetery, for Helen S. Pitman, a former resident of Carmel, who died June 5 in Santa Cruz. She was 85.

Born Feb. 2, 1902 in North Platte, Neb., she lived in Carmel for 25 years before moving to Menlo Park in 1967. She moved to Santa Cruz two years ago. A homemaker, she was a member of the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church and Little House Senior Citizens of Menlo Park.

Survivors include a son, Merle of Cupertino; a brother, Charles Swanson of San Gabriel; and three grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions to Ronald McDonald House in Palo Alto or to the donor's favorite charity.

June R. Klove

A memorial service took place June 7, the day she would have celebrated her 89th birthday, at the First United Methodist Church in Pacific Grove, for June R. Klove of Pebble Beach, who died June 5 at her home. She was 88.

Born June 7, 1898 in Buckeye Township, Iowa, she was educated at Ames Teachers College and later pursued a career in education and business. She had been a member of the PEO Sisterhood since 1928 and was five times president of her Southern California chapter of PEO.

She was also active in the Salvation Army Home League, Methodist Church associations, senior citizen groups and Friends of the Pacific Grove Library.

Survivors include a daughter, Kathryn Stolfi of Pebble Beach; three grandchildren and one great-grandson. Her husband, Herman, died in 1956.

Cremation took place, followed by scattering of ashes at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Bernadine S. Keeley

A memorial Mass was celebrated June 19 at Carmel Mission, for Bernadine S. Keeley of Pebble Beach, who died June 15 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. She was 66.

Born in Johnstown, Pa., she had been a resident of Pebble Beach for 12 years, living previously in Geneva, Switzerland, and Marblehead, Mass.

She served as a lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps during World War II.

She was a member of the Monterey History and Art Association and the Women's Golf Association of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club. She has been a volunteer worker for the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula and the Bing Crosby and Pebble Beach Pro-Am golf tournaments.

Survivors include her husband, Warner of Pebble Beach; a daughter, Catherine McNeff of Fresno; two sons, retired U.S. Navy Cmdr. James R. Steel of Pensacola, Fla., and Stephen H. Steel of Manteca; a sister, Dorothy Turich of Tampa, Fla.; three brothers, Edward Savage of Grosse Point, Mich., Joseph Savage of Las Vegas, Nev., and James Savages of Pompano Beach, Fla.; and eight grandchildren.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, followed by scattering of ashes at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, or the charity of the donor's choice.

Cato C. Schilthuis

Cremation, followed by scattering of ashes at sea took place for Cato Coenraad Schilthuis of Carmel, who died June 10 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. He was 93.

Born Sept. 6, 1893 in The Netherlands, he had lived in Carmel for 25 years. He was a retired executive with Continental Grain Co.

Survivors include two sisters, Maria Priesman and Johana Talma, both of The Netherlands; brother, W.C. Schilthuis of Westport, Conn., and several nieces and nephews. His wife, Magdalena, died in 1986.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to Meals on Wheels.

William A. Bjornvold

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, followed by scattering of ashes at sea, for William A. Bjornvold of Carmel, who died June 13 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. He was 82.

5 Born Nov. 29, 1904 in Minneapolis, Minn., he had lived in Carmel since 1936. He worked as a painter for about 40 years for several painting contractors on the peninsula, including Purity grocery. He retired in 1976.

He was a member and past master of Carmel Masonic Lodge No. 680, F&AM, member of Ocean Spray Chapter, Order of Eastern Star of Pacific Grove, and Carmel High 12 Club. He served in the Marines during World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Helen, and sister, Gertrude Lapham of Portsmouth, Va.

At his request, no services took place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Joseph Starbuck Jr.

Memorial services took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Joseph Earl Starbuck Jr. of Carmel, who died June 9 at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Livermore. He was 70.

Born July 21, 1916 in Los Angeles, he moved to Carmel from Encino in 1976 when he retired. He worked for McDonnell-Douglas for 27 years, starting as an illustrator and later becoming the advertising and marketing director. He had also been a commercial artist.

After graduating from Chouinard Art Institute in Los Angeles, he went to work for Walt Disney and worked as an animator on many Disney cartoons and films from 1938 to 1942. He worked for North American Aviation from 1943 to 1945 and also served in the Navy during World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Frances; two sons, Gary of Mexico and Fletcher of Austin, Texas, and four grandchildren.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Alzheimer Resource Center, 1295 LaSalle St., Seaside 93955.

Stanford Roberts

A memorial service took place June 13 at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church in Carmel Valley, for Col. Stanford Roberts of Carmel Valley, who died June 6 at home. He was 67.

Born May 13, 1920 in New York City, he studied at the C.H. White School of Photography, then worked with Dimitri Kessel for Life and Fortune magazines. He also served for a short while in 1941 as a cameraman at Paramount Pictures.

In June 1942, he entered the U.S. Army, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps. Accompanied by a war correspondent and another American soldier, he crossed the Russian lines and entered Berlin, observing the battle and acquiring numerous photos. Besides being credited as the first American officer to arrive on the scene, he was also awarded the Bronze Star for valor.

Col. Roberts attended the Army Command and Staff College and took special courses in command and communication. He was awarded two Army Commendation medals. He also attended the Army Advanced Signal Course in 1957, graduating first in his class.

His last assignment was in the First U.S. Army, Communication and Electronics, as chief of branch. For this he was awarded his second Legion of Merit.

A peninsula resident since 1975, he was a past president of the Tierra Grande Homeowners Association, a member of the Retired Officers Association, the Monterey History and Art Association, the Monterey Bay Aquarium, the Carmel Valley Homeowners Association, and St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church.

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy; two daughters, Christine Czarnecki of Morgan Hill and Pamela Girvin of San Anselmo; and one grandchild.

Following cremation, ashes were scattered at sea. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family requests memorial contributions to the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula or to the donor's favorite charity.

SPCA seeks towels, blankets, sheets

The wildlife center operated by the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is in need of discarded, but clean, blankets, towels, sheets and pillowcases.

According to Jim Bennett, MCSPCA community relations manager, "The Wildlife Center uses these items in a variety of ways, to include lining the cages of the many baby birds which are turned in to the center for rehabilitation and nurturing prior to their being released back into the wild. In addition, the blankets are used to cover bird cages and we even use some of the towels for the various rodents we have in our eare."

Arrangements can be made by the MCSPCA to pick up these items at the donor's home if transportation to the SPCA is not possible. Items can be dropped off at the SPCA office, 1002 Monterey-Salinas Highway, or for pick-up, call 373-2631 or 422-4721.

Alzheimer's Disease discussed

A support group for caregivers of persons with Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders meets from 4 to 5 p.m. every other Thursday in the library at the Monterey County Health Department office, 1270 Natividad Road, Salinas.

Group leader is Mary Moran, Geriatric Social Work Specialist with the mental health division of the health department. For more information, call 424-0946.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Fear is a low motive, but it is effective

Rotary, La Playa Hotel, June 23
A Nautical Prayer

Once on the bridge of a Norwegian freighter bound for Manila, the captain observed that "there are no atheists in foxholes." I'm sure that is true; but there are none on ships at sea either. He then quoted from the 107th Psalm: "They that go down to the sea in ships that do business in great waters. These see the works of the Lord and His wonders in the deep." (The modern translators of the Bible have really worked over this psalm to its detriment as they have done to the beloved and poetic 23rd The Lord Is My Shepherd.)

In life, we encounter frequent storms, squalls, and rough seas as we sail from launching to beaching. We suffer from physical, mental and spiritual turmoil. We are subjected to anxiety, fear, depression and confusion. Often, we take out our frustrations on our families and friends.

Like the captain in a storm who waits too long to call for help because he fears that he might lose his ship or its cargo to salvage, we show our false pride and misplaced independence; however, a call for help shows that we believe that the Lord is watching and that He has the power to rescue us.

There is a price to pay; we have to give up our selfishness and tell him we will keep His Laws. How huge do the waves have to be, how fierce the winds, how near the rocks before we are willing to cry out "Lord, help us, we perish?"

A philosopher once said that fear is the lowest of all motives but no one can deny that is the most effective. Amen.

Discount car coupons available

Discount car seat coupons are available at 10 a.m. each Tuesday at a car seat safety class in the lobby of the Monterey County Health Department, 1270 Natividad Road, Salinas. Proper car seat usage is demonstrated and a film is shown.

Rotary Club scholarships now available

Monterey Rotary Club has announced that the club is inviting men and women to apply for study abroad in 1987-1986, under the auspices of the Rotary Foundation.

The awards, for graduate and undergraduate students, teachers of the handicapped, vocational trainers and journalists, provide round-trip transporation, educational and living expenses for one academic year, and funds for intensive language training, if necessary. The primary purpose of these scholarships is to contribute to international understanding through study abroad.

Rotary foundation educational awards have sponsored more than 12,000 students at a cost of $50 million to 127 countries. The foundation is a trust supported by voluntary contributions from Rotarians, their clubs and friends of the program in more than 150 countries. The foundation will spend $35 million over the next three years to promote international understanding.

The deadline for application to your local Rotary Club is July 15. Contact Hershell Peak at 649-3113 for further information on eligibility. The application procedure may take some time, and candidates are urged to begin the process as soon as possible.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

If you're a senior citizen who's thinking of taking up exercise — a good idea for all of us — you'd be wise to consider these tips: get a medical checkup and ask your doctor's advice; always warm up before exercising to increase your flexibility; protect your joints by stopping exercise as soon as you feel pain; don't exercise immediately after eating; drink plenty of liquids, but avoid caffeine; work up to about 30 minutes per day of exercise, with 10 to 20 minutes devoted to brisk walking; and check your diet with your doctor to determine whether you'll need vitamin or mineral supplements.

Remember When? 1926 — Do you recall what songs were popular that year? Among the favorites were "Blue Room," "Desert Song," "Bye Bye Blackbird," "In A Little Spanish Town," "When Day Is Done" and "I Found A Million Dollar Baby In A Five And Ten Cent Store."

Housing sought for Bach musicians

Housing donors for the Carmel Bach Festival have the opportunity to host one of the festival's many out-of-town musicians. Fifty members of the orchestra and 35 members of the chorale come to Carmel from around the country to perform in this renowned festival to which Carmel has played host for 50 years. Musicians will stay through Aug. 2.

Housing donations vary from offering a room and bath in a private home to offering an entire house of any size to house many musicians. Since musicians are busy with all-day rehearsals and evening performances, they are undemanding guests.

For further information, contact Nana Faridany at the Carmel Bach Festival office, 624-1521.

Free shuttle operates daily

The free shuttle serving downtown Monterey, Fisherman's Wharf, Cannery Row and the Monterey Bay Aquarium now runs daily through Labor Day, Sept. 7.

Hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. The free shuttle runs approximately every 20 minutes from the East Custom House Garage located at Tyler Street and Del Monte Avenue, Monterey. All-day parking is available in the East Garage for $3. The shuttle itself is free.

Additionally, information on the shuttle is broadcast on radio frequency 1610 AM.

Family weekend camp planned

All ages and members of any family are invited to attend the City of Monterey Parks and Recreations Department's Camp Quien Sabe Family Weekend Camp.

The camp will take place July 17 to 19 at the Toro Regional Park site.

Pre-registration is required and will be accepted on a first come basis. Camp enrollment is limited. Fees are $25 for adults (15 years and over) and $20 for children ages 1 to 14.

There are no fees charged for an infant under age 1. Fees include meal expenses. Helen Reed is the camp director. For more information, call 646-3866.

Trio of concerts set this holiday weekend at Hidden Valley Theater

FLUTIST JULIUS Baker will appear Sunday, July 5 at Hidden Valley Music Seminars.

TWO OF AMERICA'S foremost concert artists - Julius Baker, flutist and John Mack, oboist - present classical selections on the July Fourth weekend in Hidden Valley Theatre. In addition, Ali Ryerson, jazz flutist, will play a jazz concert with The Buddy Jones Trio in the intimate country theater in Carmel Valley.

Mack, principal oboist with The Cleveland Orchestra, will begin the series with a Friday, July 3, recital at 8 p.m. On his program are Vivaldi's "Concerto in F Major," Stravinsky's "Pastorale" and a sonata by Oskar Morawetz. Performing with Mack will be pianist Marc Shapiro who has appeared previously with Mack at Hidden Valley and at the International Double Reed Society Convention in Graz, Austria. Geraldine Walther, principal violist of the San Francisco Symphony, will join them for Loeffler's "Two Rhapsodies for Oboe, Viola and Piano."

On Saturday, July Fourth at 7 p.m., American jazz favorites will be played by jazz flutist Ali Ryerson. She will be joined by Buddy Jones, string bass; Edward Graham, drums, and Robert Phillips, piano. Ryerson, a native New Yorker, was brought to the peninsula last summer by Julius Baker. Included in her credits are performances throughout the United States and Europe with The Oliver Jackson Trio and a recording in London with trombonist Roy Williams.

Julius Baker, former principal flutist of the New York Philharmonic, will play at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, July 5. Pianist Lisa Emenheiser of Reston, Virginia, and Raymond Fabrizio, principal flutist of the Monterey Symphony, return to perform with Baker. Works chosen include Kuhlav's "Trio in G Major for Two Flutes and Piano" and Telemann's "Quartet in D Minor for Three Flutes and Continuo."

Bakers' recital will be followed by Hidden Valley's Annual Salmon Barbecue, an opportunity to visit with the artists over a sumptuous supper on the La Garde Deck.

The public may also audit morning and evening master classes taught by Baker and Mack during the week preceding the recitals.

Further information about tickets, barbecue and master class reservations may be obtained by calling Hidden Valley at 659-3115.

Tickets for the Baker and Mack recitals are $10 and for the jazz performance, $8. Tickets are also available at the following outlets: Abinante Music Store, 425 Alvarado, Monterey; Allen and Company, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Carmel; Prim and Proper, 553 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove; Jim Gattis, 315 Main St., Salinas.

Can't cope? Sheri Glaser shares her knowledge

By ANNE PAPINEAU

IF YOU ever wondered what a middle-aged accountant, a "New Age" Chicano and a bulimic teenager have in common, Coping will provide a two-word answer. Sheri Glaser.

Each of these characters and many more are tapped from the mind of this self-described "dramatic comedienne." Coping, Glaser's one-woman show, will open Thursday, July 2 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey.

A San Diego resident, Glaser says she lives "across the street from a pitbull in heat."

"I've been working on these characters for five or six years," she explains in a telephone interview. "They're a collection from my life. I don't have them written down. I improvise. I've had so many different experiences I put them into characters. The audience can relate or laugh."

Glaser is an alumna of two improvisational comedy troupes that have performed before on the Monterey Peninsula — the Hot Flashes and the Egomaniacs. The Monterey County Theatre Alliance gave Glaser and the other Egomaniacs an award for their touring production of The Nickel-Wiener Roadmap to Enlightenment.

These days Glaser is on her own, but only as a performing artist. She's expecting a baby, and plans to marry in August. And since April she has tested her Coping characters before audiences in Southern California.

"Each character in Coping shows their own manner of how they deal with the world," she says. "I portray them all, it's just me, and they reveal themselves in monologue form."

The characters and their modus operandi are as multi-dimensional as Glaser herself.

"There's a teenager named Sandra and she's, oh God, she's just 17 and on the verge of getting out of the house. She's miserable. She doesn't like her body, she hates her mother, she feels like a prisoner in suburbia. She's bulimic — that's how she stays happy, being thin."

And then there's Sherlyn.

"She's pregnant and not married but she's in love with a Las Vegas gambler. He gambles on everything. Is it gonna be a boy or girl? — he's already got money down on that."

She describes Miguel as "an enlightened Chicano who tells about manifesting, Tarot and Ramtha, who's supposedly the Hindu god where the ram came from. Miguel checks in with him. That's how he deals with his problems, his life, through 'New Age' practices."

At age 86, Rose still faces the dilemma of creating the perfect relationship.

"She talks about sex over 80 and she's in love and having a relationship with this man. Sex is still not easy for her. She's still working it out. She's a very wonderful old Jewish woman."

Bev, a manic depressive, is "actually about 45 and she's going to law school. She has a family and suffers from the empty nest syndrome. She relies upon Lithium to curb her mood swings. She's always on the verge — 'Are the things she does really crazy or not?' she always wonders."

Glaser has also brought to life Bev's husband, Mort, an accountant "who's son is a Zen master and his daughter an actress and a lesbian. His problems are his kids."

Assembling and presenting a show of this type is "hard work and good work," Glaser maintains. "I love it more than anything I've done."

If her half-dozen characters ring true, it's because "Everything I've talked about I have experienced, am experiencing or my family has."

Glaser's parents live in Carmel Valley.

"My family is very patient and tolerant and supportive of what I do. As far as all these characters inside of me, you know how you spend a lot of time thinking, 'I don't want to be like my mother.' I keep fighting, but when I visit, I start talking like her. Instead of fighting people, I become them, and that's great."

Just as each of her characters presents a unique way of working out problems, Glaser has found performing to be her own best coping method.

"Right now I perform twice a week, and the rest of the week I grow my baby. If I hadn't gone on stage I'd be in a mental home. I was a nut, and all this stuff had to come out of me on the stage."

But that stage is always a risk-riddled minefield.

"One time I did stand-up comedy and the audience wasn't ready. Usually people know about my act. I wanted to talk about bulimia and I asked, 'Are there any bulimics out there?' It was pretty rough because they'd been drinking. I had to go back two more nights and I had to make my act more subtle. You can't learn this stuff in school. You have to do it, to pay your dues."

At 27, Glaser has already paid some performing dues and managed to hold on to her dreams.

"I'd really like to take this show all the way to Broadway," she says. "I'd like to eventually write plays, films dealing with my experiences and people I know. I can't relate to many characters in the movies. I can't find anybody like me, and I know they're out there ... I want to change the world of entertainment."

'I can't relate to many characters in the movies. I can't find anybody like me, and I know they're out there ... I want to change the world of entertainment.'

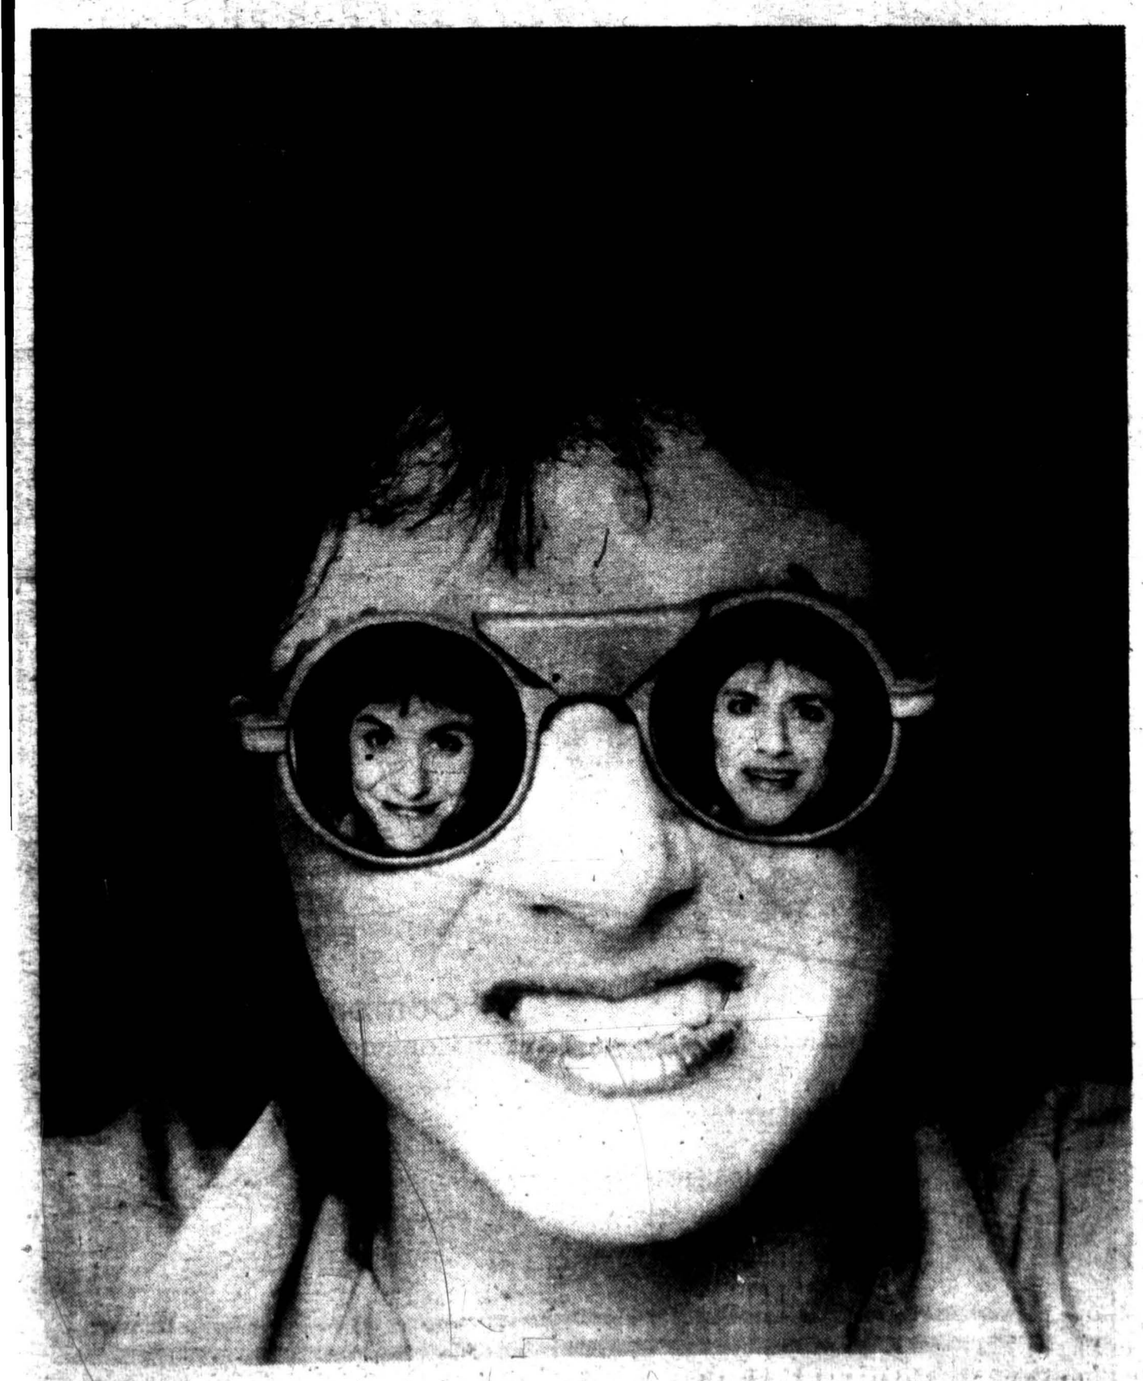
Glaser counts among her "role model women" Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin, Whoopi Goldberg, Alice Walker and Vanna White.

"I have respect for Vanna because she let the Playboy pictures come out and she's still out there and it's a tough place to be," she notes.

Glaser's husband-to-be is in law school.

"He loves my work and thinks it's the most brilliant stuff in the world, not that he's biased, but he has really high standards," she laughs.

Her Coping show will play Thursdays through Saturdays at GroveMont until July 25. There will be no performance on Saturday, July 4. For show information contact GroveMont at 649-6852, or Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.



COMIC SHERI Glaser taps into six different personas in her new one-woman show, Coping. The production opens Thursday, July 2 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center, Hoffman at Lighthouse in New Monterey.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

ADVENTURES IN BABYSITTING: This comedy was directed by Steven Spielberg protege, screenwriter Chris Columbus (Gremlins and Young Sherlock Holmes), in his directorial debut about the misadventures of a teenage babysitter with three charges in tow during one wild night on the town in Chicago. Rated PG-13. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

THE BELIEVERS: This occult thriller stars Martin Sheen as a New York City police psychiatrist embroiled in the dark side of the Santeria religion. Co-stars are Helen Shaver, Robert Loggia and Jimmy Smits. John Schlesinger (Midnight Cowboy, The Falcon and the Snowman) directed. Rated R. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

BENJI, THE HUNTED: Another shaggy dog saga by Walt Disney Pictures, finds little Benji lost and alone in the mountains after a fishing accident separates him from his trainer and forces involvement with wild animals that would normally be deadly enemies. Joe Camp, who made the original Benji, directed. Rated G. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

DRAGNET: Dan Aykroyd and Tom Hanks star in this action-comedy that takes place in — where else? — The City...Los Angeles. Aykroyd plays the namesake nephew of Det. Sgt. Joe "Just the facts, Ma'am" Friday of the popular '50s and '60s TV show of the same name and Hanks portrays his hip partner Pep Streebeck investigating a series of cult robberies. Rated PG-13. At the Hill Theater. 375-2800.

HOOSIERS: The redemption of a small-town Indiana high school basketball team on its way to a state championship final in 1954 is at the heart of this film starring Gene Hackman as the coach and the Oscar-nominated Dennis Hopper as his assistant. Barbara Hershey also stars in this David Anspaugh-directed film. Rated PG. Ending at the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

INNER SPACE: A comedy-adventure brought to you by the man who directed Gremlins, Joe Dante. It stars comedian Martin Short and Dennis Quaid. Quaid plays a scientist/astronaut who gets miniaturized and accidentally injected into Short, with unpredictable results. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

PLATOON: Oliver Stone directed this uncompromising exploration of the Vietnam War and the Americans who fought there. Charlie Sheen portrays Chris Taylop, Stone's narrator and central character who dropped out of college to enlist. Rated R. Ending at the Crossroads Cinemas. 624-2792.

ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW: A send-up of remembered monster movies, with the added twist of music, "The Time Warp," "Over at the Frankenstein Place," and an audience that seems to know the lines better than the actors. A long-standing cult classic. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

ROXANNE: Writer/star Steve Martin's comic 20th century version of the 17th century romance, Cyrano de Bergerac. Daryl Hannah is Roxanne, Martin is the gallant hero with the oversize nose, and the co-stars are Shelly Duvall, Rick Rossovich, Fred Willard and Michael J. Pollard. Fred Schepisi directed. Rated PG. At Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

THE SECRET OF MY SUCCESS: Michael J. Fox portrays a kid from Kansas who comes to New York to conquer the business world and discovers there's no such thing as an overnight success ... just give him a week or two. Co-stars are Helen Slater, Richard Jordan and Margaret Whitton. Rated PG-13. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

SPACEBALLS: Funnyman Mel Brooks' wild spoof on the Star Wars trilogy stars John Candy, Rick Moranis, and Brooks himself. This space farce also stars Bill Pullman, Daphne Zuniga, Dick Van Patten, George Wyner, and Joan Rivers' voice. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Dutch and Dillon

ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER stars as Major "Dutch" Schaefer and Carl Weathers co-stars as CIA operative Dillon, members of a military rescue team who are being stalked by an extraterrestrial adversary in Twentieth Century Fox's action-adventure, Predator.

ON STAGE

Holiday

Philip Barry's graceful American comedy of manners opens Thursday, July 2 in the Studio Theater in the Performing Arts Complex at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

The Western Stage presentation of this comedic classic continues at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, July 3-4.

Tickets are $8.50 for Friday and Saturday performances and $7.50 for others. For information or for Western Stage reservations, call 375-2111 or 758-1221.

Judevine: A Vermont Anthology

A handful of actors take on many roles in Judevine, a poetic, "unsweetened" play about 20 odd characters who live in the "ugliest town in northern Vermont ... except maybe East Judevine."

The Western Stage production plays in the Studio Theater of the Hartnell College Performing Arts Center, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

Tom Humphrey, managing artistic director of the Western Stage, directs the West Coast premiere of David Budbill's play.

Judevine will be staged at 8 p.m. Wednesday, July 8. Tickets are $8.50 for Friday and Saturday performances and $7.50 for others. For information or for Western Stage reservations, call 375-2111 or 758-1221.

1776

1776, a musical featuring Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, John Hancock and other founding fathers, continues at the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre. The award-winning musical chronicles the squabbles and conflicts leading up to the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

1776 will play at 8 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through July 12. There will be a special matinee performance at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, July 4, presented in conjunction with the Fort Ord Fourth of July celebration.

To get to the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre, enter the Fort Ord main gate and travel through the first light, then turn left at North-South Road. Continue, stopping at two stop signs, then take the first left onto Fourth Street. The theater is located one-half block down Fourth Street. Tickets are $6 general admission, $4 for military. For information or reservations, call 242-6337 or 649-5561.

'Holiday' toast

THE SETON sisters, played by Joy Camp and Deborah Hiett, join Joe VandenBussche, who plays Ned, their brother, in a toast to Holiday, Philip Barry's comedy. Which sister will get the boyfriend? That's the situation Barry poses in the Seton household — highjinks in high society. The Western Stage production opens July 2.

Dracula: The Musical?

A spoof of the Dracula legend in which all of the familiar characters are given a chance to sing and dance, Dracula: The Musical? concludes its run this week at the New Wharf Theatre in Monterey.

The musical is staged by The Frohman Academy in association with The American Musical Theatre Festival, Inc. Mikel Pippi directs the comedic work by Rick Abbot, which also features music direction by Barney Hulse, choreography by Gloria Elber and set designs by Larry Ayo.

The cast includes Jay Ostby as Dracula, Leila Knight as Mina, Larry Ayo as Renfield, Rich Hughett as Van Helsing, Eleanor Wylde as Nelly, Dorothy Scardina as Sophie and Gina Welch as Bu Bu Badoop.

The New Wharf Theatre is located at the end of Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, July 2-5. Tickets are $9 for Thursday and Sunday performances, $10.50 for Friday and $11.50 for Saturday. Senior citizen, student and group discounts are available. For reservations, call 649-2332 or 649-5561.

Little Shop of Horrors

The 13th annual summer season of The Western Stage continues with Little Shop of Horrors, a musical spoof of Roger Corman's 1950s horror movies.

Seymour, the leading man, is a nerd of awesome proportions who possesses a very loving plant named Audrey II. Seymour befriends a slightly ditzy blonde and discovers that Audrey II has a taste for blood.

Little Shop of Horrors will be staged at both 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday, July 5, in the Studio Theater at Hartnell College, Salinas. Tickets are $8.50 for Friday and Saturday performances and $7.50 other nights. For information about future performances or for Western Stage reservations, call 375-2111 or 758-1221.

Girl Talk: Coping

San Diego actress/improvisationalist Sheri Glaser of the Egomaniacs will present her one-woman show, Girl Talk: Coping. The production, often humorous and sometimes serious, opens Thursday, July 2 at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in New Monterey.

Glaser portrays six characters of her own invention who share their individual methods of coping in today's world. The characters include a "New Age" Chicano, a manic depressive who attends law school and a 19-year-old who considers herself the very center of the universe.

Girl Talk: Coping, plays at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until July 25. There will be no performance on Saturday, July 4. The theater is at 320 Hoffman at Lighthouse in New Monterey.

Ticket prices on Thursdays and Sundays are $8.50 general, $7 for students, seniors and the military. On Friday and Saturday evenings prices are $1 more. Advance tickets are available at Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. Reservations can be made by calling GroveMont, 649-6852.

County fair accepts photo entries

The Monterey County Fair is now accepting photo entries for this year's contest. Photographs can be entered in any of the following classifications: people, animals, plants and flowers, scenic landscapes, scenic seascapes, architecture, special effects, pattern/texture/abstract, travel, humor, action, photojournalism, and a special classification — humorous photograph of a photographer.

It is the intent of the photography exhibit committee to hang at least one or more prints from each contestant's entries.

Closing dates are as follows: entry forms mailed to the fair by July 17, collection store deadlines, 4 p.m. July 17; at the fairgrounds, July 24. The fair runs from Aug. 11-16.

Free Forest Theater Sunday afternoon programs resume

A NEW season of free Sunday afternoon concerts and other entertainments begins Sunday, July 5, at Carmel's historic Outdoor Forest Theater.

The free series is sponsored by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Carmel Cultural Commission. Admission is free to the summer of programs. Each will begin at 2 p.m. at the outdoor theater located on Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel.

Audience members are encouraged to arrive early to enjoy a picnic lunch on the pine-shaded grounds.

The Scottish Country Dancers of the Monterey Peninsula are the season openers. The traditional social dances of Scotland will be performed, the jigs, reels and strathspeys. Accompanied by pipes, the kilted dancers will also perform the sword dance, Highland fling and Irish jig.

The two main types of Scottish dance, country and Highland, differ considerably in style and purpose. Country dances have the character of ballroom or social dancing. They are performed by groups and have intricate set patterns. They were possibly the Scottish interpretation of the French court dances, which were introduced to the United Kingdom in the 18th century.

Highland dances, such as the Highland fling and sword dance, are performed solo. They are very precise and the difficult movements require stamina and coordination. They were originally danced only by males, but mainly females perform them today.

On Sunday, July 12, theatergoers can catch the Children's Experimental Theater staging of Dragon's Blood. The faraway world of knights in iron clothing, of castles and princesses and talking dragons, have entertained thousands of school children in Monterey County this spring. Traveling Troupe will revive its play at the historic theater, offering an opportunity to see theater for children, by children.

Another program of special interest to children will be staged on July 19, when Kadeka Dances for Children plays the Forest Theater. Kadeka has been called "one of the best cultural initiations for children in the Bay Area." The company has delighted thousands of families with their imaginative, humorous and athletic program of dances.

Perennial performers at the Forest Theater, the Cypressaires will return on Sunday, July 26. The Cypressaires represent the Monterey Peninsula in the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, the largest all-male singing organization in the world. The 60-man chorus performs in four-part harmony, singing "tear jerkers" and "gutbusters" as only the barbershoppers can do them.

Dixieland, Inc. pulls into the Forest Theater on Aug. 2. Its wailing, jazzy sound, representative of the Monterey Hot Jazz Society, will put in its sixth appearance as part of the 1987 Sunday Afternoon Concert Season.

Classical guitarist and recording artist Terrence Farrell will be joined by his musical friends on Sunday, Aug. 9. Contrasting styles of instruments and music are hallmarks of this program favorite, and Farrell will also perform solo guitar. He has toured throughout the world and has taught guitar and performed in many of the major cities on three continents.

Making their fourth appearance in this series, the Surf City Boys Bluegrass Band will be featured on Aug. 16. Formerly known as the Western Pacific Bluegrass Band, they bring with them many musical styles. Their special appeal lies in performing classic country songs by greats like Hank Williams and Bob Wills as well as the hard-driving Bluegrass sounds of Bill Monroe and Flat and Scruggs.

A program suitable for children of all ages will be presented on Aug. 23 when the GroveMont Theater presents Goldilocks and the Three Bears and The Three Little Pigs. Adapted and directed by John Rousseau of the Magic Carpet, these classic fairy tales will come to life in a story-theater presentation. Appearing in multiple roles in both productions will be local performers Kevin Hanstick, Betsy Griffin, Mary Ann Shaup, Julie Hughett and Phil Livernois.

The award-winning El Mariachi Mixtlan will close the summer series on Aug. 30. The company has become a regular at the Forest Theater, playing to standing ovations. They have twice toured Mexico and have appeared on international television. They have attended the Tucson International Mariachi Conference for the past four years and this year won first place in the competition. They wear traditional "traje de mariachi" complete with botonadura, sombrero de charro and cinturon.

For additional information about these free concerts, call 624-3996.

THE BAY Area-based Kadeka Dances for Children troupe will make its Carmel debut on Sunday, July 19, as part of the 1987 Sunday Afternoon Concert Season at Carmel's Outdoor Forest Theater. The season will open Sunday, July 5 with a performance by the Scottish Country Dancers of the Monterey Peninsula.

SPCA stresses July 4 pet safety

With the recent Pebble Beach fire and the existing fire danger to other areas of Monterey County, there has been a conscious effort by all city councils and the county board of supervisors to eliminate the sale and use of fireworks during the upcoming 4th of July holiday season. Because of the danger which fireworks pose to animals, the Monterey County SPCA applauds this action.

The SPCA urges all pet owners, in spite of the prohibition against fireworks, to be particularly cautious of any noise level problem which might cause harm or trauma to an animal. The SPCA advises all pet owners to keep pets indoors, if at all possible, during nighttime hours so as to avoid problems. If you think that your pet might have a major reaction to fireworks, contact your veterinarian for medical assistance in advance of the holiday.

According to Jim Bennett, manager of Community Relations of Fund Development for the MCSPCA, "There will be an unusually large number of stray animals during this time of the year (the 4th) because animals want to get away from the noise. Please make sure that your fence is secure and that you take special caution regarding your animal."

Independence Day celebrated in style around Monterey Bay

TWO MAJOR fireworks displays and the annual Seaside Parade of Champions highlight a traditional July 4th weekend in the Monterey Bay area.

The public is invited to a 4th of July fireworks extravaganza at the Fort Ord Sports Stadium from 7:30 to 10 p.m. on Saturday, July 4. The celebration is organized by the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and Fort Ord and is being paid for by the cities of Monterey, Marina, Sand City, Seaside, Del Rey Oaks, Pacific Grove and Carmel.

A salute to the U.S. Constitution, a rock and roll review by the American Peddlers of San Antonio, Texas, followed by a presentation by the Cypressaires, a local men's chorus, are some of the events slated for the evening. The 7th Infantry Division (Light) Artillery cannons will roar in a 50-gun salute and the fireworks display will light up the sky for the finale of the evening.

Admission into the stadium is free, but it seats only 10,000. Overflow seating for the fireworks display will be in the surrounding parking areas. No tickets are necessary, but seats are first come, first served.

This fireworks display will be staged by Pyro-Spectacular, the firm which has provided the display at Fort Ord for the last four years.

Visitors are asked to enter Fort Ord through the Main, 12th Street, Coe, Immjin or Broadway gates with their headlights on. From the gates, they will be directed to the parking areas by signs and police. It is suggested that the public come early and bring chairs and blankets for their comfort. No pets, glass containers or alcoholic beverages will be allowed at the celebration.

The Fireworks Extravaganza Show at the California Rodeo Grounds in Salinas will be held this year on the evening of July 4. In past years the show took place July 3.

This year's show has several corporate sponsors and will benefit the Watsonville Band, an adult community concert and marching band with membership from Monterey Bay area communities.

The Watsonville Band has performed a pops concert as a part of the show for the past 12 years. This year the two hour concert will start at 7 p.m. and will feature the appearance of the Martin Murphy Big Band.

The 1987 fireworks show theme is "We The People" in honor of the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution. The 30-minute narrated show starts at 9:15 p.m.

The Rodeo Grounds open at 5 p.m. with a selection of foods being offered at various booths. Admission is $4 general and $2 for children 12 years and under. Advanced tickets are on sale at the Rodeo Grounds ticket booth. Booth hours are noon to 6 p.m. daily.

The Seaside Parade of Champions annual Independence Day parade will begin at noon on Sunday, July 5.

The formation area will be on Fremont and Birch to LaSalle streets. The parade will start at Fremont and Birch and proceed south on Fremont to Hilby Avenue where the reviewing stand and judging will be held. The dispersing area will be on Fremont from Hilby Avenue to Kimball Avenue.

There will be no parking on Fremont-southbound lanes until after the parade is over. Parking on Fremont northbound to Birch Avenue will be permitted.

The closing of the formation area on Fremont from Birch to LaSalle will start at 9:30 a.m. with all of Fremont closed for traffic at 11:30 a.m.

Following the end of the parade, further activities will be held at Oldemeyer Center on Hilby Avenue with entertainment, food and the awards of the parade prizes.

All it takes is a photograph of a photographer in a humorous situation and you can win a workshop from the Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops.

This extra classification has been added to this year's competition and is being sponsored by the workshop's directors, Roger Fremier and Gail Pierce. The photograph should depict something humorous of or about a photographer. The photographer can be anyone. This classification is open to professional and amateur divisions only. All prints entered will be judged together.

The same over-all contest rules apply with the following exceptions: each photographer is limited to two entries; and as many photos as needed to convey your idea can be mounted on one mat board.

The award is a workshop held Oct. 23-25 and is called "The Whimsical Approach." This "breaking the rules" workshop is an attempt to get particpants to escape from their present working style to discover a sense of play that will give freedom and direction to their work.

The use of a pinhole camera (once again becoming vogue) and other techniques not normally used will be demonstrated by San Francisco gallery owner and working instructor Betty Garland along with Richard McClurkin whose personal photography is often considered to be "whimisical."

For entry forms and contest information see the Monterey County Fair Premium book available at local camera stores.

Or contact the fair office for a copy by writing Monterey Fairgrounds, 2004 Fairgrounds Road, Monterey, CA 93940, 372-5863.

For further information concerning "The Whimsical Approach" workshop, send inquiries to Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops, 980 Fremont St., Monterey, CA 93940, 624-6870.

Kranz paintings, photos by the handicapped exhibited

SHOWS of batik and silk paintings by Leslie Kranz and photographs by handicapped individuals will be featured throughout July at the Seaside City Hall Art Gallery. An opening reception is planned for 7 p.m. Friday, July 10 in the gallery, located at 440 Harcourt Ave., Seaside. The gallery is regularly open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Art has fascinated Leslie Y. Kranz since her youth in Northern California. She began by drawing her animals and scenic foothill surroundings at every opportunity. As an Art minor at San Diego State, she acquired an unquenching thirst for learning all forms of arts and crafts.

After marrying a Navy flier, she lived briefly in Okinawa, where she was introduced to, and became adept at batik. She branched out on her own after returning to Hawaii, teaching, exhibiting and selling her work throughout Oahu.

After moving to Monterey, Leslie studied hand painting on silk using French dyes. She now concentrates primarily on silk painting. She does original hand painted scarves with matching earrings, clothing and framed silk paintings.

Kranz has been accepted into prestigious artists' groups during her productive nine-year career.

The photography work exhibited is the outcome of a photography project funded by the Monterey County Cultural Council, Kiwanis Club of Monterey, Monterey Peninsula Community Thrift Shop, National Pro-Am Youth Fund, and the Polaroid Foundation.

Twenty individuals from SHARE/VNA (Stroke, Handicapped Adult Rehabilitation and Education/Visiting Nurses Association), HAU, and the community received instruction from photographer Flossie Stowell of Vogue Studio.

Project participants used automatically developing film giving them immediate feedback about their work. Included in the exhibit are enlargements of photos chosen by participants and by their instructor.

Handicapped Activities Unlimited has a long history of organizing art exhibitions of work by handicapped individuals, offering a show yearly since 1973. These exhibitions include art work in various mediums, including paintings in oil, water color and acrylics, sculptures and carvings of clay, bronze, ceramic and wood, and others, including fabric.

IMAGINATION WILL take flight during "The Whimsical Approach," a workshop sponsored by Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops. For registration information regarding the October workshop, call 624-6870.

Multiple artists represented in P.G. Art Center exhibitions

SURREALISTIC DESIGNS, artwork by children and John Schatz' photographs comprise the exhibit opening Friday, July 3 at the Pacific Grove Art Center. The opening reception is scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. at the center, located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove.

"The Nature of Reality" is the title of the collection of surrealistic, mixed media works by nine California artists. These will be exhibited in the David Henry Gill and Elmarie Dyke galleries.

The collection is comprised of works by Loren D. Adams, Beatrice Berlin, Rebecca Fogg, John Mason, Edmund Moody, Steven McMillan, Charles Splady, Joe Shabram and Will Tait.

With his artistic growth firmly rooted in training received at the Art Students League of New York, Will Tait, through his work, invites an exploration into the nature of reality. Tait spent many years living in the backwoods of Oregon and the Big Sur coast of California where he pursued both painting and sculpture. In 1981, he produced a series of etchings.

In spring 1985 after completing a residency with the Oregon Coast Council for the Arts, he moved to Vermont for one year where he worked as an editioning printer for artists from throughout the country. He also participated in an ongoing research and development program refining the techniques utilized in the medium of Mylar Lithography.

Printmaker, painter Beatrice Berlin studied at the Fleisher Art Memorial and Moore College of Art in Philadelphia. She has taught watercolor, drawing and printmaking at community colleges in the Philadelpha and New Jersey areas.

Berlin's works have been purchased for the collections of numerous corporations, as well as being included in such public collections as the Brooklyn Art Museum, Philadelphia main library, University of Pennsylvania and Philadelphia Print Club.

She served on the boards of directors of the Artists Equity Association (1982-86) and California Society of Printmakers (1983-84). Berlin is a member of the American Color Print Society, Philadelphia Water Color Club, Center for Visual Arts, Marin Society of Artists and San Francisco Women Artists.

Rebecca Snider Fogg, a resident of Oakland, obtained her B.F.A. degree from the Rhode Island School of Design in 1972. She pursued graduate course work at the Rochester Institute of Technology.

Her works have been exhibited around the United States as well as in Japan and Venezuela. She has held teaching positions at such diverse institutions as the Genesee Community College in New York, the Church Street Center in Burlington, Vermont, and in Berkeley — at the Kala Institute, Berkeley Art Center Youth Art Program and the Ecole Bilingue.

Fogg has also been a guest lecturer or special workshop instructor at the Rochester Museum and Science Center, Rochester Institute of Technology, Smith College, Creative Growth and in various school and community sites in Lincoln County, Ore.

Printmaker Stephen Walker McMillan is a native of Berkeley who now makes his home in Santa Cruz.

He earned bachelor's and B.F.A. degrees from the University of California at Santa Cruz and also studied at Hornsey College of Art in London. McMillan's prints have been exhibited around the Western United States in both one-man and group shows. His work has been included in the collections of such organizations as the Oakland Museum, Achenbach Print Collection, Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and the United States Embassy in Tokyo.

Minnesota-born Charles Douglas Splady studied at the University of Wisconsin, California College of Arts and Crafts and U.C. Berkeley Faculty Research Center.

Among the shows in which his designs have been included are "Time to Get Ready for Halley's Comet," New Museum of Modern Art, 1974; "Toys of the Artist," Walnut Creek Civic Arts Gallery, 1973; and "The Metal Experience," Oakland Museum, 1971.

Edmund Moody lives and works in Monterey. His paintings have appeared in many individual and group shows, and he is currently represented by the Connoisseur Gallery of Carmel.

In his artist's statement, Moody noted, "By combining both intellect and emotion with lucid content and remaining mindful of the demands of craftsmanship and aesthetics, I find it possible to create works that are philosophically and psychologically penetrating and yet universally accessable. My goal is to discover and express meaning and spirit in life. It is toward this end that my present works are aimed."

The class is taught by Jackie Warren, who explained that her goal is to celebrate each child's uniqueness with guided explorations into the child's own inner vision.

John Schatz's "Sisters" photographs were taken over a 14-year period. A multi-media artist, Schatz has had paintings exhibited at the Tantamount Theatre in Carmel Valley, drawings and photographs shown at Cafe Balthazar in Pacific Grove. He has also read poetry around the United States.

This collection at the art center will continue through Aug. 8. For additional information, contact the Pacific Grove Art Center at 375-2208.

Alfred Burrell copper etchings featured

Faces West Gallery announces a showing of copper plate etchings by Alfred Ray Burrell. Burrell (1877-1952) was a prominent artist in the Northern California area during the 1930s and 1940s. Noted particularly for his etchings and lithographs, he was a prize-winning member of the California Society of Etchers, as well as the Honolulu Print Makers.

Landscape was his chief form of expression in the traditional manner of his era, and he became known for his trees: "poet of the trees... (of the) California coast" (Alfred Frankenstein, San Francisco Chronicle). His work includes some of the most striking landscapes in California, many in the Monterey-Carmel area as well as Yosemite, Sonoma and the Bay Area.

A member of a pioneer Oakland family, he studied in New York and Europe, but lived most of his life in San Francisco and Honolulu. He taught at the California School of Arts and Crafts before devoting himself to the etching and lithographs that were exhibited throughout the United States, Hawaii, Europe and the Orient.

Only since 1983 has the Burrell family allowed Marin artist Laura Lengyel to reproduce from his copper plates. Since most of the plates show little signs of wear, the Posthumous Limited Editions of A. Ray Burrell etchings carry on the legacy of the fine printing of the etcher himself.

This current exhibit includes many of the etchings of Point Lobos, Carmel, Monterey Oaks and coastline which helped to increase the reputation of California's beauty as well as its fine artists.

Faces West Gallery is open daily from noon and will fature the A. Ray Burrell etchings from May through October.

'La Traviata' film presented

Franco Zeffirelli directed the 1982 film version of Verdi's La Traviata, which will be screened Tuesday, July 7 as part of the Summer Film Festival at Monterey Peninsula College. MPC instructor Bill Purdy will introduce the film, which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

La Traviata will be shown in the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall, 980 Fremont Blvd., Monterey. Admission is $3 at the door. For more information, call 646-4051.

Monterey Library screens films

Filmshows is a program of the Monterey Public Library, and features short films screened free of charge at 2 p.m. each Thursday.

The Thursday, July 2 program is scheduled to include screenings of Drinkers of the Wind; a documentary on the Arabian horse; A Tour of the Jack Daniels Distillery; Highways of History, and a movie about aquariums.

The library is located at 625 Pacific St. in Monterey. For information about future programs, call 646-3933.

Festival music camp now enrolling

The Carmel Bach Festival will present its 21st Summer Music Monterey Camp for junior and senior high school students. Camp dates this year are July 13-31. Students will have the opportunity to study with Bach Festival musicians for an intensive 19-day session at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach which allows for both resident and day students.

Students receive instruction in theory, solfege, music history, baroque dancing, ensemble performance and individualized instruction from the resident clinicians.

Inquiries and reservations are now being accepted by writing Summer Music Monterey, Carmel Bach Festival, Box 575, Carmel, 93921, or by calling 625-1955.

SPCA sponsors day camp

The Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will present a summer day camp for children. The day camp will offer the opportunity to work with animals, train in search and rescue, and visit the SPCA Wildlife Center.

Sessions will be conducted throughout July. The camp is divided into programs for children ages 8 to 10 and 11 to 13. Tuition is $25, and financial aid is available.

To register, call the MCSPCA Education Department at 373-2631.

Award-winning movies presented

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will screen Sherman's March and The Green Wall.

An improbable search for love is the theme of Ross McElwee's 1986 production, Sherman's March. The project began as a documentary tracing the effects of General Sherman's march on the south when McElwee's girlfriend dumped him. Shaken but determined, McElwee headed south anyway. The film won the Academy Award for best documentary. It will be screened Friday through Sunday, July 3-5.

The Green Wall is the Wednesday, July 8 film offering. The most honored Latin American film ever, it is a sensitive and magically photographed story of a young family who decide to escape the pressures of life in Lima and make a new home for themselves in the lush Peruvian jungle. It will be shown in Spanish with subtitles.

Both films will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Morse Auditorium, Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren, Monterey. Admission is $3.50 general, $3 students and $2.75 for senior citizens. Information: 624-5216.

The House of Many Beginnings

One hardly knows where to begin with this one-of-a-kind house. For starters, it's right on the beach, one of only nine houses in Carmel that actually reach the waterline. The only thing between it and the sand is a stout iron fence.

Another approach is the driveway, which leads off Scenic Drive above 8th and comes through an electric gate to a parking plaza and 2-car garage. The front door faces a high Santa Maria stone wall with a small waterfall dropping down from its top. Flower beds and a stone terrace lead to the door.

The entrance opens to the dining room, an Italian marble paved space a few steps above the spacious living room. That looks out to a tremendous vista of sea, sand, Carmel Point, Pescadero Point and Point Lobos, through tinted, one-way windows surrounding 2 sides of the room. In the enclosed yard outside is a swim-spa, terrace, barbeque, oceanside shower and several stairs leading up to various levels of the house.

From the dining room you may go left up two marbled steps to a spectacular breakfast alcove and the long narrow kitchen. This again has marble counters and top-of-the-line appliances, most of them hidden. At the end, a door opens to the double garage.

Or you can turn right down a carpeted staircase to two bedrooms, 1½ baths, and a large, mirrored "weight room," a fully equipped gym. There is access to the beach from this level.

Another stairway leads up from the dining room to the master suite. The stair is bright, with full skylighting above and glass block wall above the kitchen. At the top is an enormous bath with mirrored walls, dressing room, and separate chamber with commode and bidet. A sun roof is just outside the door, and a large Jacuzzi protected by glass walls promises true Roman luxury.

The bedroom here has a greenhouse front facing the sea, a rolling drapery for privacy, Santa Maria stone walls and an elevated fireplace (one of 3 in the house).

Hy-Tide (as it is called) is completely furnished, and but for 2 paintings, everything comes with it: dishes, towels, silver, tables, chairs, sofas, pillows, stereos in almost every room, TV sets, security system, lamps, telephones and gymnasium paraphernalia.

There is nothing to compare with this place. You can begin to live in it immediately. It's $1,650,000 — 2400 sq. ft., less than one year old. If you can think of a convenience that isn't here, you are very imaginative!

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 23

As recently as 20 years ago or so there were ten gasoline stations in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Today there are only three. It might be fun to review the locations of those which have faded away. At the corner of 6th and San Carlos there were two; a Union 76 run by the Bannermans for many years on the northwest corner and a Phillips 66 on the northeast corner. One block up at San Carlos and 5th was and still is Lugo's Shell. At the northwest corner of 6th and Mission was a Chevron garage run by Carl and Chan. Up at 4th and Junipero was and still is the modern Carmel Chevron Station. Right on Ocean Ave. was the big Chevron Garage, now the Dick Bruhn store. A block down at San Carlos and 7th were four stations. Going clockwise from the existing Carmel Mobil at the northwest corner you had your choice of Texaco on the present site of Neilsen's Market, Shell in the present location of Bell Tower Court (Portions of the original used brick building designed by world famous architect Charles Sumner Greene are still visible), and Arco on the southwest corner. In addition, the present site of the courtyard across San Carlos Street from Wells Fargo Bank was once an automotive garage which dispensed fuel. And we are told that the 8th and Dolores site of the Drive In Market once sold fuel. Interesting trivia...have we missed any?
